SMUGGLING PLOT ON MEXICAN BORDER

By Telegram to The Freeman.
El Paso, Tex., May 19.—Agents of the United States department of justice are searching along the border of New Mexico for evidence of a gigantic smuggling plot alleged to have had the backing of Mexican consuls. The search is being conducted today under the leadership of H. E. Stone, chief agent here of the department of justice, who has been given a military escort for the work of running down the conspirators.

Word reached Stone several days ago that Mexicans were smuggling arms and ammunition across the border from New Mexico in large quantities. An investigation that began immediately resulted in a raid last night upon a Mexican house at Douglas, Ariz. There the military police found a complete wireless plant, forty rifles and thousands of rounds of ammunition.

Thus far the ringleaders of the smuggling plot have escaped capture, but Agent Stone is personally conducting the hunt for them. American officers at Fort Bliss believe that the rifles and ammunition seized at Douglas were to be taken into Mexico, but the Douglas authorities assert the discovery of the wireless plant is evidence that an outbreak of Mexican residents of that town was planned to take effect in the near future.

Pending further raids upon the border by Mexican bandits residents of the border states today settled down to speculate upon the probable length of the Carranza's government's existence. Mexico's internal conditions, which have already caused food riots in many centers, have now begun to create disaffection among the Carranzista troops, according to reliable reports along the border.

Inability of the Carranza government to raise funds is responsible for these conditions. The Mexico now is worth about two cents in gold. The Mexican soldiers, who get about two pesos a day, object to this condition. From all parts of Mexico come fresh reports of disturbances growing out of the failure of Carranza to pay his troops, and the Carranzista money with its small purchasing power.

The employees of some railway lines have struck and the telegraphers are reported to be preparing for similar action.

At Piedras Negras, Guadalupe and Acuña, Calles labor troubles have assumed serious proportions. Traffic to the south is tied up. First decrees by Carranza have failed to relieve the situation.

ARMY INCREASE TO BE GRADUAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, May 19.—Although the senate and house conferees agreed upon an authorization for a regular army of 211,000 men, it became known today that the army appropriation bill, to be introduced in the house next week, will make provision for only 105,000 men for the year ending June 30, 1917.

The army will not be brought up to 211,000 men for five years. The men will be added in annual increments. Members of the house military affairs committee said today that the appropriation this year would be for only a limited number of men because the recent attempt to recruit 20,000 men had failed so signally, only about 6,000 men having been secured so far.

The house military affairs committee also has decided to cut down on the reserve supplies authorized in the bill on which an agreement has just been reached between the two houses of congress. Articles that can be purchased in the open market at any time at practically a fixed price will be eliminated from the bill.

The bill will total a little more than $145,000,000. The appropriation last year was close to $100,000,000. While there are several appropriation bills to be taken up ahead of the one for the army, Chairman Lusk has been assured by the house leaders that the measure will be taken up and disposed of before the end of the present fiscal year, June 30. The present program is to take it up immediately after the naval appropriation bill, which will be reported a day or two ahead of the military appropriation bill.

Fertilizer Factory Burned.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, May 19.—Fire swept a fertilizer plant of the T. F. White Manufacturing Company on Barren and in Jamaica Bay early today, destroying nine buildings and causing $300,000 loss. Odors from the plant have been the cause of complaints from Brooklyn residents for many years.

Railroad President Resigns.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Omaha, Neb., May 19.—President L. Mohler, of the Union Pacific, resigned today. His resignation, which was announced here today, will be effective on July 1. His health suffered from the strain of his duties with the Union Pacific in its advisory capacity.

ROOSEVELT FLAYS FORD PACIFICISM ON HOME GROUNDS

Mistaken Zeal of Motor Magnate Pointed Out as Neo-Copperhead Policy by T. R. Who Sounds Honk, Honk of Warning to Fellow Citizens on Belgium and Preparedness.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Detroit, Mich., May 19.—Theodore Roosevelt invaded the stronghold of Henry Ford today and let the motor car maker know in plain language just what he thought of him.

While professing great admiration for Mr. Ford's character and his treatment of his employees, Mr. Roosevelt declared Mr. Ford would willingly turn the whole country, including his workmen, over to a foreign invader.

Philanthropic Belgian employers before the war likewise treated their workers well and decided preparedness for war, the Colonel said.

Today these workmen are in poverty, they cannot find work to do, except at the behest of the conqueror and their employers' fine theories have resulted only in disaster and woe.

Mr. Roosevelt said he was reluctant to speak just before the conventions, "because it is very difficult to make people understand that speeches at such a time are not of the ordinary political type made in the interest of some particular individual candidacy."

But the success of Mr. Ford in the primaries of Michigan and his strength Nebraska and Pennsylvania had had such an effect on congressmen, he continued, that he must speak out.

Like Mr. Ford, the Tories of the Revolution and the Copperheads of the Civil War were many of them "men of fine character and upright purpose."

Like Mr. Ford, they proposed to get the "boys" of Bunker Hill and Valley Forge and the "boys" of the Army of the Potomac out "of the trenches" by Christmas. He continued:

"These pacifists of the Revolution and the Civil War had their way, they would have put an immediate stop to much suffering and much loss of life. They would have secured the applause of every peace-at-any-price man at home and abroad. And unwittingly they would have utterly ruined this nation. They would have prevented its being a nation."

"They would have rendered it certain in each case that, for the one war they averted at the moment, ten were ensured for the years to come."

"This is what the pacifists of our day, the neo-Tories, the neo-Copperheads, will do if they achieve their purpose."

The politicians of today are imitating the example of their predecessors in the 16-to-1 fight, trying to please both parties, those who are for and those who are against preparedness.

"There is no use in saying that we will fit ourselves to defend ourselves a little, but not much," said Mr. Roosevelt. "Such a position is equivalent to announcing that, if necessary, we shall hit, but we shall only hit soft. To go to war a little, but not much, is the one absolutely certain way to ensure disaster."

It is the people who are to blame for not forcing their representatives to take action, said Mr. Roosevelt, continuing:

"We, through our representatives at Washington, have absolutely refused in the smallest degree to prepare during these twenty-two months of world cataclysm."

"We have endeavored to deceive ourselves by announcing that in this policy of supine inaction and of failure to perform duty, we are actuated by the loftiest motives."

"There is not a nation in the world which believes that our course of conduct has been dictated by anything save timidity, unworthy shrinking from effort and responsibility and cold and selfish love of money making and soft ease."

The administration is giving us a false preparedness, Mr. Roosevelt continued, but the pacifists "object to even make-believe preparedness."

Mr. Roosevelt declared there are only two great issues—Americanism and Preparedness and he seemed to challenge the Republican party when he added:

FIELD BAKING INSTRUCTION AT CHEVY CHASE. WOMEN ROOKIES LEARN ART OF ARMY BAKING IN THE FIELD. All the bread baked for the Women's Service Camp at Chevy Chase, Maryland, now in its second session, is produced on the camp grounds in regulation army ovens. The baking of the bread serves a double purpose, supplying the bread for the camp and giving the women practical instructions in field baking.

democratizing and nationalizing our life; quite as much so as the public school, and far more so than the American factory and the American city as they are today."

To the German-Americans he declared they would suffer as much by a foreign invasion as persons of other blood. He himself, he said, is part German. He added:

"There has come into my possession a copy of a letter written by Professor Paul Rohrbach of Berlin to a German, Professor Appelman, of the University of Vermont. I have made careful inquiry and I find that the letter is unquestionably genuine."

"Professor Rohrbach has been one of the most widely quoted of the German professors who in the present war have set forth German claims; and, according to the 'Vorwaerts,' many of his utterances can be taken as at least semi-official."

"This semi-official representative of the German government writes from Berlin, under the date of January 13, 1916, as follows, explaining why German-Americans should not favor preparedness (which he calls armament):"

"It is perhaps open to question whether genuine German interests would derive benefit from American armaments. In order to form an opinion, one would have to be able to foresee what lines German policy will follow after the conclusion of peace, and particularly how our relations with Japan will shape themselves. It seems to me quite conceivable that in an American-Japanese war, we should adopt an attitude of very benevolent neutrality toward Japan and thereby make it easier for her to beat America. In that case, why should we help on the American armament policy?"

"Therefore, that German political aims would be forwarded ipso facto by German-Americans lending themselves to the schemes for American armament."

"This letter from Dr. Rohrbach unquestionably expresses the attitude of militaristic Germany in endeavoring to use, against the honor and interest of the United States, that portion of the professional 'German-American' element of this country which is disloyal to this country, and shows why this disloyal element among the professional 'German-Americans' has joined with the professional pacifists in the movement to leave the United States helpless against possible aggressors—a moment which is traitorous to this republic."

"It is a deliberate suggestion and invitation to German-Americans, not merely to vote in the interests of Germany, but to vote so that another foreign power, Japan, may be enabled to beat the United States in, as the letter states it, the 'quite conceivable event' that Germany's interest is to see a war between Japan and the United States in which Japan shall be victorious."

"I am certain that the German-Americans who can consciously be reached by any such suggestion form an utterly insignificant proportion of the Americans of German descent. But some of their genuinely patriotic fellows may be influenced unconsciously by such arguments."

"Therefore, I ask my fellow citizens who are in whole or in part of German blood to consider very carefully the above letter and to ponder what is meant for their children and grandchildren by the attitude thus set forth. These descendants of theirs are to live here in this land, just as my children and children's children will live. Their interests and the interests of my children's children will be identical. In the end, as the generations go by, they will all intermarry and become not merely in interest, but by blood, identical."

"The men of German blood have always played a high and honorable part in this country. In the great crisis of the Civil War they stood with loyal devotion by the Union and against slavery; and it is probably true of them that at that time more generally than those of any other blood they upheld the cause personified by Abraham Lincoln."

"I believe that the great mass of them are at the present day undivided in their loyal devotion to this country. I know that our entire national government, from president down, could be manned with men of German birth or descent who would be Americans and nothing else, who would stand for the United States first and for no other nation second."

"I very earnestly wish that some way could be found for repudiating the men whose actions have made it possible for foreigners like Professor Rohrbach to write with the insolent belief that they can use our fellow-citizens of German birth and descent so that their political influence may be exerted in such fashion as to make this country helpless to defend itself against foreign aggression, whether from Japan, from Germany, or from any other power."

FLOATING TORPEDO SUNK TUBANTIA

By Telegram to The Freeman.
The Hague, May 19.—After a thorough investigation it has been established that a German torpedo sank the Dutch steamer Tubantia, was announced today, but Germany has refused to admit responsibility for the disaster on this ground.

The torpedo was fired from a German ship some ten days before, at a British warship. It floated about for ten days and exploded when it came into contact with the Tubantia.

A LONG TALK IN SHORT TIME.

Across the Continent Demonstration Awakens Interest of Business Men.

Woodstock, May 19.—Norvin Lasher, of the firm of Lasher & Lasher, undertakers, has moved to Saugerties. The business will now be under the management of Victor Lasher, who is a licensed undertaker and embalmer.

NEW CREAMERY AT ELLENVILLE OPEN

Jewish Co-Operative Plant Successfully Worked Out—Enterprise of Supporters Made Subject of Complimentary Comment by Heads of Ulster County Farm Bureau.

Opening of the Jewish Co-operative Creamery at Ellenville on Tuesday marked a most creditable step on the part of the Jewish farmers in the county and also the addition of an up-to-date plant to the creamery industries of Ulster. With an equipment capable of handling 500 cans of milk daily, it is believed that the new institution will prove a success from the start.

Manager W. H. Hook of the Ulster County Farm Bureau was one of the speakers at the gathering which marked the opening of the plant and congratulated the members of the association upon their enterprise. Not only as a market for milk but as a stimulus to the creamery industry, the creamery will be most useful said the speaker who concluded his remarks with advice to the farmers on the necessity of having good herds of cows. Careful selection, he said, would pay in dollars and cents and instance a herd in which one cow paid a profit of more than $50 a year while another cost $23 to keep in the same period.

I. J. Wolf introduced the speakers and spoke of the good reputation and skill which have marked the advent of the Jews into farming in Ulster. Walter S. Cox complimented the organizers upon the building for which they had been working so long.

An outline of the work of Jewish farmers in the county was given by J. W. Pincus who stated that there are 15 branches of the Jewish Farmers Federation in Ulster and Sullivan counties. The Hurleyville Creamery he pointed out, was started three years ago and the Ellenville enterprise had waited to see how that worked out. The latter plant is to be operated by the Newark Cheese Company and the building with its equipment represents an investment of approximately $12,000 of which $5,000 is in machinery. The main building is 28 by 110 feet and the engine house 28 by 40 feet.

Tribute to the work of the Co-operative Insurance Company of Ulster and Sullivan counties was paid by Attorney Cleon Murray who declared that the Jews were among the foremost in working for the good of the community and largely through their votes the Greenfield road improvement had been carried.

President Chester Young of the Ulster County Farm Bureau praised the Jews for their part in the road improvement and also for the spirit with which they supported the work of the Farm Bureau.

The last speaker was Mr. Hine, who spoke in the Jewish language and touched upon the opportunities presented in the back to the land movement for all peoples.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, May 19.—Hope Lodge, No. 65, Knights of Pythias, will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in their Castle Hall.

Miss Bella Krom, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Drake on Salem street, returned to her home in Esopus Thursday.

Do not forget Uncle Sam's Jubilee to be held at Pythian Hall Tuesday evening, May 23, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church. Home made ice cream will be on sale after the entertainment.

Mrs. Charles Erastus Austin of White Mills, Pa., is making an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. Christopher Durr, in Sloatsburg.

Mrs. Estella Smith, who has been the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Ray Schilling in Albany for two weeks, returned to her home on Hamilton street Thursday.

DAY'S WAR NEWS AT A GLANCE

Paris—Admitted Germans captured small French position on Hill 287. Attacks against Hill No. 304 and Avocourt Wood repulsed after most desperate fighting.

Berlin—French trenches along Harcourt-Esnes high road far as corner of Canard Forest captured by Germans. Over 120 prisoners taken. French attacks against German positions on Hill 304 broke down.

AMERICAN SOLDIER SHOT BY MEXICANS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, May 19.—Shooting of Sergeant Harry Furman, an American soldier, by Mexican customs guards at Juarez, Mexico, yesterday, has aroused suspicions among officials here as to the good faith of the latest Mexican promises of co-operation with the American forces. Preliminary investigation of the incident as reported to the war department discloses that Furman was technically outside of his rights in being on Mexican soil. But the Mexican claims that he was intoxicated and fired the first shot are not substantiated.

Furman bore a good reputation for sobriety and for levelheadedness. His company commander, who saw him shortly before the shooting, declared he was sober.

First hand information of conditions in Mexico as they will be discussed in the consular conference at El Paso, Tex., is awaited with much interest at the state department. The various consuls will discuss among themselves and lay before American commanders their latest impressions as to conditions in their various districts. These will include reports on just what has been done for the protection of Americans and other foreigners and whatever evidence of aggressive action towards Villa and his followers has been undertaken.

Senator Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, spent Thursday afternoon and evening in Kingston, and during the afternoon was given an impromptu but extremely cordial reception in the Ulster County Savings Bank building. Among those who paid their respects to the venerable senator were Judge Clearwater, Philip Elting, William McMurtrie Spear, William H. Grogan, Mayor Canfield and many others. Senator Hendricks was born at Flatbush in the town of Ulster, and when a young man left Ulster county for Syracuse which at that time was just looming up as one of the growing communities of the central part of the state. He is president of the Onondaga Trust Company, the proprietor of the largest fine arts store between New York and Buffalo, and for many years has held a dominating position in the Republican party in the county of Onondaga, and in the councils of the party in the state and union. Notwithstanding his nearly four score years, the senator is alert, and takes a warm interest in the events of the day. He has great pride in the old Dutch stock of Ulster county, which he says is about as good as any he has ever come across. He came to Kingston from Syracuse by automobile, and today visited Ellenville and the southwestern part of Ulster. Any Ulster county Republican who has been an aspirant for a state position always has received the cordial support of Senator Hendricks.

LYNCH CASE INTERESTS WILSON

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, May 19.—Unless some word is received within the next few hours, President Wilson is going to make further inquiry of the American embassy at London regarding the fate of Jeremiah C. Lynch. All morning the White House and state department were anxiously awaiting a reply to the message sent to Ambassador Page last night instructing him to intervene in Lynch's behalf. The only word from London was a cable sent yesterday afternoon saying that the embassy had been informed by the American consul at Dublin that Lynch, who was a naturalized American, had been found guilty by a field court martial of complicity in the recent Irish rebellion.

President Wilson is gravely concerned over the case. Hundreds of messages poured into the White House today, urging that drastic action be taken to save Lynch if possible.

Officials let it be known that all that is possible for this government to do will be to see that Lynch is given a fair trial. If it is proved that he was guilty of taking part in the uprising, it was said that British authorities would be met in their rights in meting out whatever punishment the court decides upon.

Despite this, it was learned at the White House that great pressure will be brought to bear on Great Britain to go slow in Lynch's case. The tremendous widespread indignation that has swept the United States at the execution of the Irish revolutionary leaders has created a grave situation. Right now there are resolutions pending in both houses of congress expressing "horror" at the execution of the rebel leaders. If an American citizen is executed at this time it is feared here that it would bring about a crisis.

NOT MADE UP HIS MIND.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, May 19.—Upon being interviewed on the subject Congressman Ward said that he has not as yet made up his mind whether or not he will attend the Republican National Convention at Chicago in June. The program in congress will undoubtedly be arranged so that the Republican and Democrats will be given an opportunity to attend their respective conventions.

CONGRESSMAN WARD'S SPEECH.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, May 19.—Thirty-five thousand copies of the recent remarks of Congressman Charles B. Ward in the House of Representatives have been received at the congressman's office. They will soon be addressed and ready for distribution to the farmers of the congressional district. Much valuable statistical data regarding agricultural matters will be found in the remarks.

HOBSON DREW LARGE AUDIENCE

There was a large attendance at the "Dry America" rally held at the high school auditorium on Thursday night which was addressed by the Rev. A. C. Bane and Lieutenant Richmond Pearson Hobson, "hero of the Spanish-American war." The meeting was one of the thousand arranged in New York state by the Anti-Saloon League of America in an effort to secure national prohibition.

L. L. Osterhout of this city presided as chairman and introduced the speakers. The Rev. Dr. Bane, national secretary of the leagues was the first speaker of the evening and called attention to the fact that the county is now engaged in a nation wide crusade against the liquor traffic. He traced the work of the league, and said that nineteen states in the union have enacted laws for state wide prohibition, and that five states would vote on the question this fall.

Lieutenant Hobson was then introduced and outlined the measure of which he is the author and which an effort will be made to have adopted by congress. He said that it did not invade the rights of the individual nor prohibit any man from drinking. All it provided for was the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors. He told of the benefits from the prohibition laws in Russia and what was being done in France and England and other European nations at the present time with this question. He spoke for over forty minutes and held the close attention of his audience.

At the close of the rally and impromptu reception was accorded him.

It is the people who are to blame for not forcing their representatives to take action, said Mr. Roosevelt, continuing:

"We, through our representatives at Washington, have absolutely refused in the smallest degree to prepare during these twenty-two months of world cataclysm."

"We have endeavored to deceive ourselves by announcing that in this policy of supine inaction and of failure to perform duty, we are actuated by the loftiest motives."

"There is not a nation in the world which believes that our course of conduct has been dictated by anything save timidity, unworthy shrinking from effort and responsibility and cold and selfish love of money making and soft ease."

The administration is giving us a false preparedness, Mr. Roosevelt continued, but the pacifists "object to even make-believe preparedness."

Mr. Roosevelt declared there are only two great issues—Americanism and Preparedness and he seemed to challenge the Republican party when he added:

"Why should the people change their government if they are merely to change slightly the degree of preparedness?"

FIELD BAKING INSTRUCTION AT CHEVY CHASE.

CIVIL FILM SERVICE.

WOMEN ROOKIES LEARN ART OF ARMY BAKING IN THE FIELD.

All the bread baked for the Women's Service Camp at Chevy Chase, Maryland, now in its second session, is produced on the camp grounds in regulation army ovens. The baking of the bread serves a double purpose, supplying the bread for the camp and giving the women practical instructions in field baking.

democratizing and nationalizing our life, quite as much so as the public school, and far more so than the American factory and the American city as they are today."

To the German-Americans he declared they would suffer as much by a foreign invasion as persons of other blood. He himself, he said, is part German. He added:

"There was some into my possession a copy of a letter written by Professor Paul Rohrbach of Berlin to a German, Professor Appelman, of the University of Vermont. I have made careful inquiry and I find that the letter is unquestionably genuine."

"Professor Rohrbach has been one of the most widely quoted of the German professors who in the present war have set forth German claims; and, according to the Vorwarts, many of his utterances can be taken as at least semi-official."

"This semi-official representative of the German government writes from Berlin, under the date of January 15, 1916, as follows, explaining why German Americans should not favor preparedness (which he calls armament):"

"It is perhaps open to question whether genuine German interests would derive benefit from American armaments. In order to form an opinion on this subject, we must first consider what lines German policy will follow after the conclusion of peace, and particularly how our relations with Japan will shape themselves. It seems to me quite conceivable that in an American-Japanese war, we should adopt an attitude of very benevolent neutrality toward Japan and thereby make it easier for her to beat America. In that case, why should we help on the American armament policy?"

I cannot see, therefore, that German political aims would be forwarded by fact by German-Americans lending themselves to the schemes for American armament."

This letter from Dr. Rohrbach unquestionably expresses the attitude of militaristic Germany in endeavoring to use, against the honor and interest of the United States, that portion of the professional German-American element of this country which is disloyal to this country, and shows why this disloyal element among the professional German-Americans has joined with the professional pacifists in the movement to leave the United States helpless against possible aggression—a movement which is traitorous to this republic."

"It is a deliberate suggestion and invitation to German-Americans, not merely to vote in the interests of Germany, but to vote so that another foreign power, Japan, may be enabled to beat the United States in, as the letter states it, the 'quite conceivable event' that Germany's interest is to see a war between Japan and the United States in which Japan shall be victorious."

"I am certain that the German-Americans who can consciously be reached by any such suggestion form an utterly insignificant proportion of the Americans of German descent. But some of their genuinely patriotic fellows may be influenced unconsciously by such arguments."

"Therefore, I ask my fellow citizens who are in whole or in part of German blood to consider very carefully the above letter and to ponder what is meant for their children and grandchildren by the attitude thus set forth. These descendants of theirs are to live here in this land, just as my children and children's children will live. Their interests and the interests of my children's children will be identical. In the end, as the generations go by, they will all intermarry and become not merely in interest, but by blood, identical."

"The men of German blood have always played a high and honorable part in this country. In the great crisis of the Civil War they stood with loyal devotion by the Union and against slavery; and it is probably true of them that at that time more generally than those of any other blood they upheld the cause personified by Abraham Lincoln."

"I believe that the great mass of them are at the present day undivided in their loyal devotion to this country. I know that our entire national government, from president down, could be manned with men of German birth or descent who would be Americans and nothing else, who would stand for the United States first and for no other nation second."

"I very earnestly wish that some way could be found for repudiating the men whose actions have made it possible for foreigners like Professor Rohrbach to write with the insolent belief that they can use our fellow-citizens of German birth and descent so that their political influence may be exerted in such fashion as to make this country helpless to defend itself against foreign aggression, whether from Japan, from Germany, or from any other power."

FLOATING TORPEDO SUNK TUBANTIA

By Telegram to The Freeman.

The Hague, May 19.—After a thorough investigation it has been established that a German torpedo sank the Dutch steamer Tubantia, it was announced today, but Germany has refused to admit responsibility for the disaster on this ground.

The torpedo was fired from a German ship, some ten days before it was a British warship. It floated about for ten days and was exposed when it came into contact with the Tubantia.

A LONG TALK IN SHORT TIME.

Across the Continent Demonstration Awakens Interest of Business Men.

What the wild waves are saying to the Seal Rocks at San Francisco and an exchange of vocal notes from leading citizens of Kingston and similar folk in Frisco are two notable features of the trans-continental telephone demonstration and smoker set for Thursday evening, May 25, at 8 o'clock at the Elks Club under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. Motion pictures will also be included.

For the nominal price of $1 each of the 200 guests will hear the human voice from a greater distance than ever before and individual receivers will be available for all present. Delegates to the Hudson Valley Chamber of Commerce meeting next Thursday are to be guests of the Chamber on this occasion.

The entire demonstration is being arranged by the New York Telephone Company. Tickets for the affair are in the hands of Chairman L. F. Bannon, Messrs. Ralph D. Clearwater, Aaron Cohen, Ward Everett, Charles A. Warren, of the social committee, and Secretary J. E. Canfield.

Vocational Training Favored.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, May 19.—In a referendum completed today by the chamber of commerce of the United States, two-thirds of the commercial organizations of the country requested the establishment of a federal board backed by federal funds for aiding vocational training. Three hundred and fifty-three organizations cast votes on the national chamber's plan. The result of the canvass is to be reported to congress with a request for such legislation as necessary for the carrying out of the plan.

NEW CREAMERY AT ELLENVILLE OPEN

Jewish Co-Operative Plant Success.

Fully Worked Out—Enterprise of Supporters Made Subject of Complimentary Comment by Heads of Ulster County Farm Bureau.

Opening of the Jewish Co-operative Creamery at Ellenville on Tuesday marked a most creditable step on the part of the Jewish farmers in the county and also the addition of an up-to-date plant to the creamery industries of Ulster.

With an equipment capable of handling 500 cans of milk daily, it is believed that the new institution will prove a success from the start.

Manager W. H. Hook of the Ulster County Farm Bureau was one of the speakers at the gathering which celebrated the opening of the plant and congratulated the members of the association upon their enterprise.

Not only as a market for milk but as a stimulus to the creamery industry, the creamery will be most useful, said the speaker who concluded his remarks with advice to the farmers on the necessity of having good herds of cows. Careful selection, he said, would pay in dollars and cents and instanced a herd in which one cow paid a profit of more than $50 a year while another cost $23 to keep in the same period.

J. J. Wolf introduced the speakers and spoke of the good reputation and skill which have marked the advent of the Jews into farming in Ulster. Walter F. Cox complimented the organizers upon the building for which they had been working so long.

An outline of the work of Jewish farmers in the county was given by J. W. Pincus who stated that there are 15 branches of the Jewish Farmers Federation in Ulster and Sullivan counties. The Hurleyville Creamery, he pointed out, was started three years ago and the Ellenville enterprise had wanted to see how that worked out. The latter plant is to be operated by the Newark Cheese Company and the building with its equipment represents an investment of approximately $12,000 of which $5,000 is in machinery. The main building is 28 by 110 feet and the engine house 28 by 40 feet.

Tribute to the work of the Co-operative Insurance Company of Ulster and Sullivan counties was paid by Attorney Cleon Murray who declared that the Jews were among the foremost in working for the good of the community and largely through their votes the Greenfield road improvement had been carried.

President Chester Young of the Ulster County Farm Bureau praised the Jews for their part in the road improvement and also for the spirit with which they supported the work of the Farm Bureau.

The last speaker was Mr. Hine, who spoke in the Jewish language, and touched upon the opportunities presented in the back to the land movement for all peoples.

AMERICAN SOLDIER SHOT BY MEXICANS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, May 19.—Shooting of Sergeant Harry Furman, an American soldier, by Mexican customs guards at Juarez, Mexico, yesterday, has aroused suspicion among officials here as to the good faith of the latest Mexican promises of co-operation with the American forces. Preliminary investigation of the incident as reported to the war department discloses that Furman was technically outside of his rights in being on Mexican soil. But the Mexican claims that he was intoxicated and fired the first shot are not substantiated.

Furman bore a good reputation for sobriety and for levelheadedness. His company commander, who saw him shortly before the shooting, declared he was sober.

First hand information of conditions in Mexico as they will be disclosed in the consular conference at El Paso, Tex., is awaited with much interest at the state department. The various consuls will discuss among themselves and lay before American commanders their latest impressions as to conditions in their various districts. These will include reports on just what has been done for the protection of Americans and other foreigners and whatever evidence of aggressive action towards Villa and his followers has been undertaken.

Senator Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, spent Thursday afternoon and evening in Kingston, and during the afternoon was given an impromptu but extremely cordial reception in the Ulster County Savings Bank building. Among those who paid their respects to the venerable senator were Judge Clearwater, Philip Elting, William McMurtrie, Speer, William H. Grogan, Mayor Canfield and many others. Senator Hendricks was born at Flatbush in the town of Ulster, and when a young man left Ulster county for Syracuse which at that time was just flourishing up as one of the growing communities of the central part of the state. He is president of the Onondaga Trust Company, the proprietor of the largest fine arts store between New York and Buffalo, and for many years has held a dominating position in the Republican party in the county of Onondaga, and in the councils of the party in the state and union. Notwithstanding his nearly four score years, the senator is alert, and takes a warm interest in the events of the day. He has great pride in the old Dutch stock of Ulster county, which he says is about as good as any he has ever come across. He came to Kingston from Syracuse by automobile, and today visited Ellenville and the southwestern part of Ulster. Any Ulster county Republican who has been an aspirant for a state position always has received the cordial support of Senator Hendricks.

LYNCH CASE INTERESTS WILSON

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, May 19.—Unless some word is received within the next few hours, President Wilson is going to make further inquiry of the American embassy at London regarding the fate of Jeremiah C. Lynch. All morning the White House and state department were anxiously awaiting a reply to the message sent to Ambassador Page last night instructing him to intervene in Lynch's behalf. The only word from London was a cable sent yesterday afternoon saying that the embassy had been informed by the American consul at Dublin that Lynch, who was a naturalized American, had been found guilty by a field court martial of complicity in the recent Irish rebellion.

President Wilson is gravely concerned over the case. Hundreds of messages poured into the White House today, urging that drastic action be taken to save Lynch if possible.

Officials let it be known that all that is possible for this government to do will be to see that Lynch is given a fair trial. If it is proved that he was guilty of taking part in the uprising, it was said that British authorities are within their rights in meting out whatever punishment the court decides upon.

Despite this, it was learned at the White House that great pressure will be brought to bear on Great Britain to go slow in Lynch's case. The tremendous widespread indignation that has swept the United States at the execution of the Irish revolutionary leaders has created a grave situation. Right now there are resolutions pending in both houses of congress expressing "horror" at the execution of the rebel leaders. If an American citizen is executed at this time it is feared here that it would bring about a crisis.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

Letters of administration on the estate of Gordon K. Hill of Pine Hill has been granted to his sister, Gertrude F. Hill, of New York city, by Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court.

Mr. Hill disappeared from his home at Pine Hill in a blinding snow storm on December 11, 1903. He had been agent for a western publishing house in the sale of books but sales were few. He was 28 years old, unmarried, his home surroundings were pleasant and there was no reason why he should leave home. Apparently everything was pleasant and he was contented.

On December 11, 1903, he left the house, saying he was going out but not saying where he was going. He was dressed in his ordinary clothes and members of the family supposed he was going somewhere to deliver some books which he had sold. He never returned home and his family have never seen him since. They conducted an investigation and advertised for him. The police departments of Kingston, Poughkeepsie and Newburgh aided in the search, relatives with whom it was at first supposed he might have gone to visit at Shandaken and Dutchessville had not seen him, the army and navy departments had no record of his enlistment, and after many years his family concluded he is dead.

Mr. Hill was a son of the late Isaac D. Hill, for many years a prominent resident of Pine Hill, and besides his mother, Mrs. Sarah F. Hill, who resides in Saugerties, he has four sisters living. They are Gertrude F. Hill of New York city; Ethel Damm of Woodhaven, Long Island; Helen Swart and Elizabeth V. Hill of Flatbush, Ulster county. His estate consists of the proceeds of a paid-up life insurance policy for $358. Frank P. Pentledge of New York city appeared for the administratrix.

A hearing was held in the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of Marvin J. Sutton and John K. Sutton as executors of the estate of Hiram Sutton of the town of Pletskill and a decree was granted. Mills & Mills of Albany appeared for the executors; Van Etten & Cook appeared for Charles H. Sutton, a contestant.

Estate Appraised.

County Treasurer Snyder, as appraiser under the taxable transfer act, has filed his report of appraisal of the estate of Miss Frances Shufeldt of this city. The estate consists of personal property amounting to $18,204.80; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $1,398.86, leaving a net estate of $16,805.94. Augustus Shufeldt of this city and Arthur D. Pickering of New York city, the executors, were represented by Judge Jenkins; Joseph H. Vanderlin appeared for the state comptroller.

County Treasurer Snyder also has filed his report of appraisal of the estate of Charles V. L. Pitt of this city. The personal property amounts to $7,588.06 and there is no real estate; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $733.96, leaving a net estate of $6,854.10. Isabella Pitts, the executrix, was represented by the Van Riven & Longman; Joseph H. Vanderlin appeared for the state comptroller.

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, May 18.—The committee who have in charge the preparations for the coming of the Rev. Chauncey Stevens and his family would be very glad if the ladies of the Reformed Church would meet at the parsonage Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23 and 24, for the purpose of cleaning the parsonage. Mr. Stevens's furniture will be shipped May 23, so it is very necessary that the parsonage should be ready for it. Any help that that any of the ladies are willing to give will be thankfully received.

Grange meeting on Friday evening. The grange hall will be completed on Saturday. Just a day too late to hold a meeting in it. A dance was held at the Casino on Wednesday evening.

A number from this village attended the supper held in the Reformed Chapel at Cottekill on Tuesday and on Wednesday evenings. Miss Scaries visited Miss K. H. Cantine.

MEALS FOR SMALL FAMILY.

When buying chicken, save the wing tips, neck and giblets for soup. Save the white meat for creamed chicken or for pudding and one may have several meals from one chicken.

Chicken Pudding or Souffle.—Chop the uncooked white meat of the chicken, then rub it fine. Put half a cupful of dry bread crumbs with a cupful of milk over the fire to soften, add the chicken, salt, pepper and the yolks of three eggs, beaten. Mix well, then fold in the well-beaten whites and put into a buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes or until it is firm. Serve at once or it will fall.

It is much better to entertain two or three guests on different days than to give a large affair which upsets the routine of the home. On the day or the day before entertaining for an evening company one might have turkey, then the cold slice meat may be used in various ways or served in sandwiches for the evening.

A pineapple or Edam cheese keeps well and is perhaps a more economical cheese to buy unless cheese is bought in very small quantities.

Left-over fish may be served in a cream sauce or in a salad making very good dishes so that one may buy a fish, boil or bake it and not feel that it is too expensive for the small family.

The following is a good dinner menu for the small family: Tomato soup, broiled slice of fish with lemon butter, potato balls, sliced cucumbers with French dressing, apple pie, cheese and coffee.

Mutton Boudin.—Take a pint of finely chopped mutton previously cooked. Cook together for two minutes two tablespoonsful of soft crumbs and half a cupful of stock or water; add a tablespoonful of butter and the meat nicely seasoned with salt, pepper and onion juice and two well beaten eggs. Fill into greased custard cups. Set in a pan of boiling water and bake until firm. Turn out and garnish each boudin with parsley.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. Updegraff entertained a large circle of the ladies of the Ladies Aid Society of St. James M. E. Church at her home on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Sachloff of No. 44 Third avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Bessie, to Harry Bernard of Walden, formerly of this city. The wedding will take place in the near future.

A number of young men from St. Peter's parish will have a private dance at St. Peter's Hall on Monday evening, May 22. George Dittmar and Joseph Belcher are the committee of arrangements and have secured Steve Miller's orchestra for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luithe of 446 Washington avenue were tendered a surprise party Thursday evening in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Those present were: Policeman and Mrs. Frank Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Snyder, Frank Snyder, Jr., Supervisor and Mrs. John Hein, Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Walter, Miss Kathryn Haber and K. G. Walter.

Miss Bessie Sachloff of 144 Third avenue was caught in a shower last evening and given a surprise by twelve of her young girl friends. Miss Martha Wingert and Miss Mamie Lang made the arrangements and, when silver, cut glass, etc., were "showered" on the hostess. Miss Sachloff's engagement to Harry Bernard of Walden was announced recently and their marriage will take place in the near future.

On Thursday evening a surprise party was tendered Alfred Drautz of 14 Prince street in honor of his birthday. During the evening names were played, also musical selections were given by Henry Shantz and Lillian Van Steenburgh. Hazel Hutton and Miss Mairies, and Dewey Fallon, Lynn Grant, Charles Baxter, Raymond Rundel, Alfred Messinger, Stanley Lebert, Harry Spangenberg, William Rugar, Alfred Drautz, Lewis Shubert, Henry Shantz, Harold Drautz, Willie Manakie and Carl Thiel. In the wee small hours of the morning the guests departed for their homes, declaring their host a royal entertainer.

Festival Rehearsal Monday.

There will be a full rehearsal of the Festival Chorus held at Symphony Hall on Monday evening of next week, at eight o'clock. All members owning copies of Hardin's "Citation," sung last year, are asked to bring such copies with them to the Monday evening rehearsal.

Hours of Federation Meeting.

The annual business meeting of the general Federation of Women's Clubs will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the lecture room of the Fair Street Reformed Church. As the plans for the new year of the Federation will be presented at this meeting, all Federation members, both club members and individual members are asked to be present. In addition the general public, particularly women not members of any clubs are invited by the entertaining body. The Political Equality Club, to be present at 2:15 o'clock to hear the addresses which will be delivered by Mrs. Blackburn of Albany and Admiral Higginson of this city.

Dinner to Mr. Hare.

Those who saw the war pictures and heard J. H. Hare talk at the Kaituma Frange Hall Saturday evening will be interested to know that a dinner was given him on Monday evening at the Biltmore on the eve of his departure for the front once more. About 60 enjoyed the dinner, which was presided over by J. A. Schleicher, editor of Leslie's Weekly, while among the speakers were Mr. Collier, of Collier's Weekly; Peter Hackitt, the actor; and William Trueman of Lake Katrine, who was there as Mr. Hare's oldest friend. Letters of regret for inability to be present, expressing high regard for Mr. Hare's sterling qualities, were read from many prominent men in the army, navy and government.

Enjoyable D. A. R. Social.

The social afternoon of Witwick Chapter, D. A. R., which was held at the chapter house on Thursday, and which will be the last for this season, was a particularly enjoyable affair. Those in attendance either enjoyed an informal game of cards or chatted among themselves over their needlework. The guests were received by Mrs. W. K. Fessenden, who acted as hostess. Mrs. Michael being unable to be present. During the afternoon the guests were invited to the dining room, which had been handsomely decorated with lilacs and foliage, the table being particularly attractive with its floral arrangement of lavender and white lilies. Light refreshments were served and when later the gathering scattered it was with expressions of satisfaction that the regent, Mrs. Philip Elting, had inaugurated these social meetings of the chapter.

Organ Recital Sunday Night.

Owing to the fact that the organ recital given by the Norman Taylor, organist of Holy Cross Church, occurred on Monday evening last, and that the Dr. Steiner lecture at the First Dutch Church came at the same evening, many persons asked Mr. Taylor if he would not repeat the recital. In compliance with the request Mr. Taylor has consented to give the recital, with additional numbers at the Holy Cross Church on Sunday evening at 7:30. The program will be as follows: March of the Israelites.....M. Costa; Fantasy in E Flat.....Schubert; Selected number.....Helmond; Symphony (Adagio, allegro).....Haydn; Adornamus.....Ravina; Overturo in F.....Petril; "Bagatelle" (Old English).....Reiter; Melody.....Guilmant; March Pourcalle.....Lemmens; Sciliano.....E. J. Hopkins; Fantasia.....W. T. Best.

A silver collection will be taken up.

Married Forty Years.

Mr. and Mrs. Genio Goetchius of Livingston street, Saugerties, who were married on May 17, 1876, celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary at their home on Wednesday evening, and about twenty-five friends shared in the enjoyment of the festive occasion. In honor of the joyous event, the house was prettily decorated, and a shower bouquet of red carnations ornamented the diningroom table. During the evening, after the felicitations had been showered upon the estimable bride and groom, music occupied the attention of the guests. Miss Pauline Comfort singing a number of solos in her usual charming manner. The music was followed by an elaborate repast and to this ample justice was done. Novel souvenirs graced each plate and a feature was the wedding cake, from which tinkled forty small bells. A number of beautiful gifts, mainly of cut glass, were received by Mr. and Mrs. Goetchius, and when the good nights were uttered, a wish accompanied them, that many more anniversaries would fall to the lot of the "forty years old" couple.

Children's Dance.

The parish house of St. John's Church had a merry party of children within its walls last night. The Junior Auxiliary of the church enjoyed a pleasant dance. Under the leadership of Mrs. A. K. Hart these children have practiced dancing throughout the spring. Miss Marjorie Richards surprised the many people who were present with her skillful and graceful dancing. Later in the evening Master Robert Hart and Miss Marjorie Richards engaged in a special dance. Miss Helen Luthier played the music. The dance order was as follows:

March—Polka.
Waltz.
Paul Jones.

TREY SAY.

The following is from a local exchange:

Lost.—A new black wool skirt, which was hanging on clothes line and the wind blew in the creek, last Saturday. Anyone finding same will kindly call at the Herald office and receive a reward.—A.L.R.

At the regular union rates of expenditure on legislative junkets these two new committees named to investigate poultry and auto lights won't get very far. Both committees have only $3,000. That would hardly last two weeks pursuing chickens and looking into auto lights on Broadway alone.

"All this talk of preparedness as a new thing makes me tired," said an old revival follower the other day. "Why it's not so long ago that people all over the country were being warned by religious sects of one kind or another to prepare to meet their God. In letters a fear high, some of which were luminous by night, the word 'Prepare' was painted on stones and along roadsides. It's not a man at every turn. Today it is the same thing in regard to military conditions, only the agitation is in public meetings of every kind and reflects on every page of the newspapers in some form or other. And, like everything else, if you impress a thing on people often enough they have no difficulty in getting converts."

REAL ESTATE SALES.

Deeds Recently Recorded in County Clerk's Office.

The following deeds have been filed in the office of the county clerk:

Gertrude F. Dederick of West Camp to Anna M. Youngs, a parcel of land in the town of Saugerties. Consideration, $1.
Harold Rockefeller of Kingston to Horace G. Young, a parcel of land in the city of Kingston. Consideration, $200.

Motorcycle and Auto Collided.

While the circus parade was coming down Broadway near West O'Reilly street a motorcycle on which was riding Matthew Weishaup, and an automobile driven by A. V. A. Felton of Danbury, Conn., came together on Broadway at the entrance to the city hall grounds. No one was injured, but the motorcycle was somewhat damaged. Each driver blamed the other for the collision.

Freaks of Stammering.

Stammering, like other ailments, has its freakish ways. A correspondent recalls the worst stammerer in his school, who was also—now what do you think?—the best soloist in the choir. His malady allowed him to sing what he could only speak with difficulty. And a harassed master, aware of the fact, would take advantage of it as a last resource, so that a delighted class had its Latin grammar in E sharp when it came to the stammerer's turn to be questioned.—London Chronicle.

GOOD HUMOR.

It is a fair, even handed, noble adjustment of things that while there is infection in disease and sorrow there is nothing in the world so irresistibly contagious as laughter and good humor.—Charles Dickens.

THRIFT.

Thrift is not a virtue of to-morrow, but of today. The young man who puts off until he is earning a larger income or until he has satisfied some present want the effort to spare and accumulate is pretty sure never to begin unless under the pressure of misfortune.—James J. Hill.

DON'T FOOL YOURSELF.

There's just one person you can fool all the time. You can't fool the public, nor God, nor your family, nor the children, but you can fool yourself every day in the week.—Corra Harris.

THOROUGHNESS.

Whatever your task, do it thoroughly. A man of sense takes the time necessary for doing well the thing he is about, and his haste to dispatch a business only appears by the continuity of his application to it. He pursues it by cool steadiness and finishes it before he begins any other.—Chesterfield.

Painter and Tavern Keeper.

Marlotto Albertinelli, who lived in the fourteenth century, was a painter who spent much time in endeavoring to produce certain mixtures in oil. He was not very successful and objected so much to the criticism he received that he gave up painting and kept a tavern, but his name as a painter still lives, while his tavern keeping record has passed away.

Mary Anderson.

When Mary Anderson was at the height of her popularity a well known critic said of her: "If that girl ever fails in love she will be the most glorious actress of our time."

Wall Papers.

Stamped paper for wall decoration was first made in Spain or Holland, about 1555. For some reason this earliest form of wall paper was succeeded by wall hangings of velvet and floss about 1620. About a century later paper came into vogue again, but it is only for the past fifty years or so that the papering of the walls of houses has been general.

DIFFICULTIES.

Do not let any difficulty, however formidable, discourage you. Difficulty is a severe instructor, set over us by the Supreme Guardian and Legislator, who knows us better than we know ourselves and loves us better too. He that wrestles with us strengthens our nerves and sharpens our skill. Out antagonist is our helper.—Burke.

THE ART OF SELLING.

The art of selling is a very important one and should not be neglected by any young man who intends to go into business, even if he does not expect to be a salesman. He will have to sell his own services, and that is one of the hardest tasks any young man can undertake.—Dean Johnson.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 19, 1916.

What chemistry has already done to intensify the horrors of war is familiar to most newspaper readers. Curtains of fire and gases of deadly effect sweep wide paths of destruction between the opposing lines of entrenchments and the survivors in the wake of the bromine and chlorine loaded atmosphere are at the best but withering wrecks of humanity. As though these horrors were not sufficient, we learn from Dr. Ira Remsen, whose text books are authorities on the subject, that chemistry has even more deadly gases available. That these will eventually find their way to the front cannot be doubted. The only comfort from this source is Professor Remsen's refusal to state the nature of these new death-dealing agencies. This humanity may be spared this further exhibition of the cruelty of science, or the benefits of these discoveries not yet disclosed may be reserved to Uncle Sam, if public sentiment permits him to use them. It would seem almost assured that any further demonstration of such damnable decoctions of science would cause a protest from all humanity which would be of sufficient strength to end the war altogether. Human endurance has been under a pretty severe strain in Europe and the monotony of murder by gases and by metal has told so seriously on the nerves of the men in the trenches as to preclude the usefulness of any more frightfulness at least if some semblance of sanity remains in Europe.

That even "frightfulness" is likely to result in no more than a draw is becoming pretty well understood in military circles and sidights on this fact are given in some of the unendorsed correspondence from the front. Take the letter of William E. Dugan, son of a Rochester manufacturer, who after nearly two years of experience at the front declares it his belief that "modern science has made war so terrible that it is no longer practical to wage it, as two sides nearly equal in men and armaments can only smash each other up pretty well without material advantage accruing to either." Out of the mouths of "rookies" comes wisdom in this instance. The impracticability of war with its economic waste through destruction of human life and the diversion of human energy from productive pursuits is something to which historians in years to come will devote considerable attention. No matter what the outcome of the war, the end can never justify the means by which the result was achieved. But as this young soldier says it would seem that a miracle is necessary to make the belligerents come to a realization, at least just yet, of the truth which must be vaguely apprehended by their intelligence.

Addresses at the Lake Mohonk Peace Conference thus far do not indicate a majority of milk-and-water variety attendance. The speakers are forceful and seem to have thorough knowledge of their subject. They may not enjoy as much celebrity as some of the men who have made the Conference famous in the past, and their names probably are not as familiar to the general public as some of the congressmen and publicists who have been traversing the country for a dozen or more years. One of the impressive things about their utterances is the evident thoroughness and mastery of the speakers in dealing with their subjects. This naturally raises the inquiry why so many public speakers profess to solve problems with ease which have given anxiety to students of the subject without a satisfactory conclusion being reached. The usual Chautauqua circuit talker disposes of problems with an unconcern that would be the envy of the conscientious student and statesman if the latter could spare the time to listen to the easy but assuring suggestions which roll from the tongue of the ready talker. The specious reasoning of the agitator is more frequently heard than the deliberate logic of the careful student, because the latter is more cautious in reaching conclusions. The plastic presentations of Andrew Carnegie are missing from the Lake Mohonk Conference, but conditions which require thoughtful consideration appear to have brought forth from the shadows the men whose opinions should have been ventilated long ago.

Lincoln, Nebraska's, Memorial Day parade will be a stinging rebuke to the Bryan brothers—William Jennings and Charles W. It will take the form of a demonstration of national preparedness, the proposal having been put to a referendum in the Lincoln Commercial Club and carried by a vote of five to one. The Lincoln parade will be the first preparedness parade in the Middle West. Until the Lincoln Commercial Club voted on the proposition, there was nothing to indicate the spurious nature of the Bryan claim that the Middle West was absolutely and unequivocally opposed to anything that savored of preparedness. Now that this section of our country has begun to speak, and show its utter disregard of Bryan's claims of being its "spokesman," the Democratic congressman of the pork barrel class ought to seek the advice of their constituents and vote for something besides bills by which their particular coteries will be favored and fattened.

The Ruddy-Saunders Bankruptcy.

At a meeting of the creditors of the Ruddy & Saunders Construction Company at the office of the referee in bankruptcy at Troy, Wednesday, George K. Smith of the Goods Roads Machinery Company, one of the largest creditors, was elected trustee and D. G. Atkins was elected attorney for the trustee. There was a large number of creditors and lawyers at the meeting. J. E. DeLoet the president of the company, was examined by the attorney for the trustee and by several other attorneys. There will be another examination on June 11.

Longs Peak.

For many years Longs peak, Colorado, was considered unclimbable. But at last a way was found through an opening in perpendicular rocks, called from its shape the Keyhole, out upon a steep slope leading from near its summit far down to a precipice upon its west side. The east side of Longs peak is a nearly sheer precipice almost 2,000 feet from the extreme top down to Chasm lake, which was the starting point of a gigantic glacier in time long before man. Chasm lake, which is not difficult to reach from the valley, is one of the wildest lakes in nature. It is frozen eleven months of the year.—Argonaut.

Who Says "Expensive Clothes"?

My answer to my own question is that it is the man who has never worn a Suit or Top Coat made by me. Before you can answer you must know my tailoring as I know it. So I invite you to come in and make a thorough investigation. I want you to know that my prices are moderate—that you can wear the finest clothes at really no more cost than the commonplace. Don't order your next Suit until you have come to me and learned what I can do for you in the way of quality, style, fit and price.

WHARF CONTRACT TO POWLEY FIRM

The Poughkeepsie board of aldermen has awarded the contract for the reconstruction of the wharf at the foot of Main street in the Bridge City to J. L. Powley's Sons of Kingston. This firm's bid was $1,695, while Frederick Douglas of New York city bid $5,210.54. The common council has voted that $4,000 be provided for the work.

A machine which has been in operation at New Hamburg will be shipped to Poughkeepsie today. The real work will be held up for several days while the contractors are picking out and shipping the lumber to be used in the repair work. While the bids were made upon specifications prepared with care by City Engineer Sylvester, it is uncertain just how much work will have to be done on the dock.

BADEN-POWELL. NEITHER PRISONER NOR SHOT AS SPY.

London, May 17.—Writing from the Boy Scout Association, Lieut. General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement, comes rumors in circulation in the United States that he is a prisoner in the Tower of London and had been shot as a spy.

"I regret that the report that I am sojourning in the Tower of London on the charge of espionage cannot be correct," he wrote "as I was taken out and shot over a month ago—according to a Chicago newspaper: 'I am not clear which country I was spying for but at the moment I am fairly sure I was for Great Britain'."

Snails Very Nutritious.
"All snails are edible and nutritious," says Canon Hersley in a book on British land and fresh water molluscs. He goes on to say that even the common garden snail, though insipid, is as nourishing as calf's foot jelly.

There is a large white shelled snail called Helix pomatia that is commonly eaten by connoisseurs in the south of England while all over France, Italy and Spain several species are used as food. In France are many small farms which yield a good profit to their owners. In the French and Italian quarters of New York snails may be bought either alive or cooked, and at most of the French restaurants they are served, escargots farci, being the most usual form of dish.

Snails are easy to raise in large quantities. They need time for making their shells, but they do not have to be fed, as they can find their own food, which is exclusively the leaves of many plants. They are most delicious when properly prepared and cooked, and, as Canon Hersley says, as nourishing as calf's foot jelly.

Sumner's Follies.
The great Charles Sumner, is said to have affected a picturesque style of dress, wearing colors brighter than those which predominated in the senatorial garb of the period. His appearance in his seat in the senate was studiously dignified. He once remarked to Noah Brooks that he never allowed himself, even in the privacy of his own chamber, to fall into a position that he would not take in the senate. "Habit is everything," he was wont to say.

That Old, Old Table.
It is impossible to know who was the author of the multiplication table, but it is known to have been in existence in the days of the builders of the ruined cities of Mesopotamia, whose records are now being patiently deciphered by archaeologists. Tablets are found which tell us of their systems of education, banking, accounting, business correspondence, etc., and among others are multiplication tables. So the multiplication table is probably not less than 6,000 years old.—Christian Herald.

Reform.
A small tailor shop on the Bowery moved out, and the tailor moved to the next block. The morning after the move the following sign appeared in the window of the wrecked store:
"Will be open for business at 2—next week and will be your home when alterations are completed."—New York Post.

CONNIE MACK'S FAMED $100,000 INFELD

Famous Quartet of Players Now Broken Up.

Somebody tagged the name "100,000 infield" on the McInnis-Collins-Barry-Baker combination in the pennant-winning days of Connie Mack's Athletics, and it stuck until the infield was broken up. There was always the idea, however, that the title was not to be interpreted literally, despite the recognized worth of the combination. The sale of Frank Baker to the Yankees has proved that the famous infield was not overrated, financially; in fact, it was underrated.

Mack got $50,000 when he transferred Eddie Collins to the White Sox. Later he got $48,000 for Jack Barry from Joe Lannin of Boston. Two members of the quartet remained, and there was some doubt as to whether Mack would, or could, get $42,000 for the pair. The price for Baker has never been officially announced, but it is generally understood that the home-run king cost Ruppert and Houston $35,000. This leaves only $7,000 to be accounted for by Stuffy McInnis. Stuffy, who is still a youngster, has batted over .360 for six successive years in the majors, and he would bring two or three times that $7,000. So that famous infield was more than a $100,000 proposition after all.

MOBBED FOR WINNING GAME

Mordecai Brown, Famous Cub Pitcher, Tells of Contest Which Stands Out Above All Others.

In a fanning bee Mordecai Brown was asked to tell the best game that he ever pitched.

"There is one game which stands out in my mind above all others. That was in 1908, when we beat the New York Giants in the play-off for the National league pennant. You will remember that Pfeister started that game and filled the bases in the first inning. Chance motioned to me to go in, and I got out of the hole with but one run scored against us.

"In the third inning we made four runs on Mathewson. In the seventh inning the Giants started a rally and made one run. The game ended with the score, 4 to 2.

"The strain of that game was never equalled by me. Upon it hinged a league championship and the right and honor of play in the world's series. In addition to this, the feeling in New York was at such an extreme pitch that we had received 'Black Hand' letters, which threatened us with our several lives if we took the pennant from New York.

"I don't believe I ever was so alarmed on a diamond as at the conclusion of that game, when the crowd at the Polo grounds practically mobbed us. Chance was hit in the neck and could not speak for several days. Other players were similarly treated. Luckily I escaped."

EX-FED PLAYS GAME ALONE

Player Under Contract to Newark Club Reports for Duty Every Morning and Afternoon.

Rupert Mills, a kid player with the Newark Feds last year, is under contract with former owner Pat Powers, who is unable to get the boy a berth. So in order to earn his salary of $3,000 Mills reports each morning for practice and works with some neighborhood players.

Quick Changes.
Wife—Darling, I want a new gown. Husband—But you had a new one only a short time ago. Wife—Yes, but my friend Helen is to be married, and I can't wear the same dress that I wore at her last wedding.—Flagstaff Blackbird.

DIAMOND NOTES

Hans Wagner seems to be the same old demon of the past.

The Athletics continue to prove easy for their opponents.

One solid wallop delivered in the pinch covers a multitude of errors.

Joe Jackson is hitting the ball hard these days, but he is not getting many hits.

The town that produces a famous baseball pitcher can well afford to rest on its laurels.

Is Hans Wagner aged? Watch his batting every day. He has been getting bingles regularly.

The Cleveland Indians, with Tris Speaker acting as field captain, are much improved over last year.

"Fried eggs cause insanity," says an expert. Ah! Now we know what ails the baseball fans of St. Louis.

If the managers' predictions come true this season, the two major league pennant races will furnish an eight-piece tie.

Joe Judge, Washington first-sacker, originally toiled in an electric power house. Now we know why he sparkles in fast company.

This is the time of the year when great baseball teams throw away games that they bitterly regret in the shank of the season.

The Philadelphia Athletics are the most erratic players in the major leagues. One day they lose and the next the other fellows win.

Tom Sawyer is holding a job as assistant turnmaker for the Washington Senators. Folks say Tom is a buckle-berry at cutting comical capers.

The Oakland club has released Babe Danzig and Frank Hoep, who failed to show signs of coming back, and returned Catcher Dave Griffith to Wichita.

Another Titus breaks into the game this year. His front name is Elmer and he hails from Philadelphia. He will play with Wheeling in the Central league.

George O'Brien, catcher sold by the St. Louis Browns to the Terre Haute Central league club, is out with an announcement that he will retire from baseball.

Manager Tinker has always contended that Max Flack is a wonderful little outfielder and he is bearing out the manager's comment by starring in the outfield.

"Billy" Sullivan is advocating the keeping of the young pitchers of the Detroit team for a period of training after the regular training season closes next autumn.

A Mean Indiscretion.
"My husband has had only one bed stroke of luck all his life." "Well, why didn't he get a divorce?"

A wise man should have money in his head, but not in his heart.—Dean Swift.

FAMOUS HORSEBACK RIDERS.

Man Who Won Fame in the Days of the Old Pony Express.

Buffalo Bill Cody, it is believed, holds the record for the longest horseback ride of which there is authentic record. He was one of that gallant band of four-score pony express riders in the sixties. On one occasion young Cody—He didn't become Buffalo Bill until some years afterward—rode without rest for 322 miles.

When the pony express was started for the purpose of carrying mail from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Cal., a distance of 1,906 miles, it was planned that each rider should cover seventy-five miles in a day on three different horses.

It was soon found that twenty-five miles was too much for the horses for a regular unbroken gallop, and the distance was reduced to from ten to twelve miles. For that distance every horse was pushed to his limit.

The shortest time in which the entire distance of 1,906 miles was covered by pony express riders was made in March, 1861. They carried Lincoln's inaugural address to the Golden State in seven days and seventeen hours, an average speed of over ten and one-half miles an hour.

A rider named Haslam dashed off 120 miles in 8 hours and 10 minutes. Another pony expressman covered one ten mile stretch in 31 minutes, which is better than most of the Rocky Mountain railroad limited trains can do. The news that Fort Sumter had been fired upon was flashed from St. Joe to Sacramento in eight days and fourteen hours.

Jim Moore once rode 280 miles at an average speed of eighteen miles per hour. The horses were the best that could be obtained, and, as stated before, they made short runs of from ten to twelve miles.

No wonder that sometimes a letter had $27 worth of stamps upon it when carried under such extraordinary conditions.—Philadelphia Ledger

TOLD BY THREE FIGURES.

A Sum in Arithmetic That Would Take Many Lifetimes to Work Out.

What is the highest number that can be expressed with only three figures? Such is the question put by the Journal of the Astronomical Society of England. At first glance it would seem that the number was 999. But it is nothing of the sort; 999 is far away too small. What, then, is the number? 99—that is to say, the ninth power of the ninth power of 9.

To ascertain what this number actually is we must refer to a table of logarithms, for it would take several lifetimes to do the multiplication. The number contains 369,683,100 figures. To write it out we should have to fill 23 volumes of 800 pages each, with 14,000 figures to a page, and the number would be greater than that of all the atoms in creation.

Henri Coupin points out in La Nature that there are stars so distant that their light, traveling at 186,320 miles a second, takes a million years to reach the earth. Astronomers have taken this as a unit and called it a "million light years."

The number of atoms in a sphere of platinum that had that radius would be 225, followed by 88 zeros. Now, a sphere that contained the number of atoms expressed by the ninth power of the ninth power of 9 would have to have a radius (in million light years) of 1,239, followed by 123,231,000 zeros.

And yet this colossal number can be expressed by three figures.

Tame Silk.

There is more silk in the world than the silkworm ever knew. As a matter of fact, much of the "silk" which is worn is merely gun cotton in a new dress. It is merely cotton dissolved in a bath of nitric acid, kept water free by the strongest vitriol! The jelly-like result is then forced through very minute tubes, and the fine threads so produced are dropped into water and rendered innocuous by ammonium sulphide. This "tame silk" has a fine luster and has all the flexibility of the worms' work. In fact, so close is the resemblance that it needs an expert to distinguish them.—London Chronicle.

She Liked Gloom.

It is a matter for thankfulness that widows of this generation are more sensible than the dowager Countess of Buchan, who passed away in the year 1786.

On the death of her husband she dressed herself entirely in black crape, engaged two black servants to wait upon her, ate nothing but black puddings and drank for one whole year nothing but black cherry brandy. Yet she survived this gloomy diet twenty-one years before the grim reaper gathered her in.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

Diplomacy.

"It takes diplomacy to get on with a husband," said the woman who speaks her mind freely.

"I believe it does," replied Miss Cayenne. "As I understand it, diplomacy consists largely in seeming to be deceived whether you are or not."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Why She Took Him.

Parson—Do you, Lisa, take Rastus for better or for worse? Bride—Well, if Ah got to tell the truth, parson, Ah'm takin' him cause he's de fust man what evah axed me.—Boston Transcript.

Uncertain Happiness.

"If I could get my wife everything she wants I'd be perfectly happy." "Shucks! No man ever is as happy as that."—Detroit Free Press.

The Largest Lighthouse.

The largest lighthouse is the one at Cape Henry, Va., the structure being 165 feet high.

Too Young to Enjoy It.

332 WALL ST., KINGSTON, N. Y.

By La Raconteuse.

Some of the quaint evening frocks and those used for the dancant are shown with hats to match, this lending an effective touch to the outfit. Here is a dance gown in Joffe blue taffeta, with quaint waist and full skirt, cloth trimmed with puffings of self material and bands of velvet ribbon. The snug waistline, puffy sleeves and floral bouquets add odd little picturesque details.

Looked Easy.
"What caused Lawyer Flinthead's downfall?"

"He had secured the acquittal of so many notorious criminals that he got the idea he could monkey with the law himself."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Shadow of Happiness.
How shall I find a name for that subtle feeling which seized hold upon me this morning, in the twilight of waking? It was a reminiscence, charming indeed, but nameless, vague and featureless, like the figure of a woman seen for an instant by a sick man in the uncertainty of delirium and across the shadows of his darkened room. I had a distinct sense of a form which I had seen somewhere and which had moved and charmed me once and then had fallen back with time into the catcombs of oblivion. But all the rest was confused—place, occasion and the figure itself, for I saw neither the face nor the expression. The whole was like a fluttering veil under which the enigma—the secret of happiness—might have been hidden. And I was awake enough to be sure it was not a dream.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

Defoe and Savings Banks.
Though Duncan of Duthell was the founder of our first savings bank, the first suggestion came from Daniel Defoe. When he found himself compelled to hide from the bailiffs in a small Bristol inn he turned his enforced leisure and financial failure to account by writing the "Essay on Projects." It deals with savings banks, friendly societies, insurance, academies and bankrupts. On all these subjects Defoe offers from his fertile brain suggestions that startle the reader by their modern ring. On bankrupts and savings banks Defoe naturally wrote with feeling. During his stay in Bristol he was known as "the Sunday gentleman" owing to his natural unwillingness to take the air except on that day of the week which deprived bailiffs of their sting.—London Chronicle.

Recipe For Troubles.
Would you like a recipe for the little vexations and annoyances of life that keep the mind uneasy and disturbed? Let us give you one. Go out in the silence of some starry night and look up at the stars for a minute or two. Get within their influence for a moment. Take in the spirit of their tranquillity and peace. Think what they are and where they are, and you will soon lose yourself in the infinity of their being. You will begin to feel that God has made this world big enough for you and that the little cares that vex you are only intruders that you should despise and scorn. Just try it and if it does not cure you you are not the man you think you are.—Ohio State Journal.

Can You Afford Any but a Titan Kerosene Engine?

AT present average prices for kerosene and gasoline, Titan kerosene engines save their owners about 1.1c per horse power per hour over gasoline engines.

Figure it this way. On an 8-horse engine the saving is 8.8c an hour, 88c in a 10-hour day, $88 in 100 days of work. Say that is all your engine does in a year.

It would cost you $88 more than you need to pay, to run an 8-horse gasoline engine one year. That is more than a third of the price of the engine. Can you afford to throw away $88 a year? Can you afford even to think of buying a gasoline engine, when you can get a Titan that uses kerosene? See the Titan dealer and talk this over. He has some interesting figures to show you.

"It's the Cut"
An aged country rector who had as old taller as his clerk, returning from his church one Sunday with the latter, thus addressed him:

"Thomas, I cannot think how it is that our church should be getting thinner, for I am sure I preach as well as ever I did and ought to have far more experience than I had when I first came among you."

"Indeed," replied Thomas, "I'll tell you what. Old persons nowadays are just like old tailors, for I am sure I saw as well as ever I did in my life, and the cloth is the same, but it's the cut, sir. Ah, it's the new cut!"—Pearson's Weekly.

France in Hindustan.
Surprisingly few people remember that France owns five little tracts scattered over the peninsula of Hindustan. They are Chandernagar, near Calcutta; Pondicherry, Karikal and Yanam, on the Coromandel coast, north or south of Madras, and Mahe, on the Malabar coast, almost due west of Pondicherry. The total area of the five is about 213 square miles, but the population numbers about a quarter of a million, and the total volume of trade is worth something like $7,000,000, only $1,500,000 being imports and practically all the rest being rice sent to France itself or other colonies. Pondicherry, the seat of government for all these tracts, is eighty-three miles south of Madras.

PEACE DEMAND IN GERMANY GROWS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Copenhagen, May 19.—Germany is preparing for a momentous upheaval, according to information reaching neutral diplomats in Copenhagen. There are gathering signs that the German government, fearing that a storm is soon to break, is taking precautionary steps to strengthen itself.

The growing demand for peace in Germany is gathering impetus from many causes, but chief of these are the following:

1—Increasing loss of human life.
2—Shortage of food and attendant privations.
3—Growing fear that Germany cannot win.

Utmost efforts have been put forth by the German government to impress upon the people the contention that Germany is not responsible for a prolongation of the war; that Germany is willing to enter into peace negotiations today if the allies would agree. Inspired articles in the press and the public declarations of statesmen are driving home this contention of the government.

All of this indicates but one thing—the government sees an approaching day when the German people are going to rise up and demand an answer to their questions as to why the war was ever begun and why it is being prosecuted in the face of untold suffering and misery.

There is deep significance attached to the uncontradicted report in Berlin that Ober President von Woldow of Pomerania province, has been made "food dictator." In addition to being an ultra conservative, von Woldow fills the need for the post, which, according to the Vossische Zeitung, demands a man "with a hard fist and an iron will."

von Woldow's "iron fist" policy in connection with the Poles establishes him as a dictator worthy of the name.

Another conservative has been elevated. This is Dr. Karl Helfferich, the new minister of interior and vice-chancellor, who is another statesman of the "iron rule" type who will brook no interference from the people, once he resolves upon a policy.

With characteristic caution the kaiser is surrounding himself with strong men. When the day comes that the people, probably led by the Socialists, put forward their demands with directness which cannot be denied, they will get their answer from a government deeply dyed in the policy of "blood and iron."

LANGHORNE STILL PURSUING BANDITS IN MEXICO.

Maj. George T. Langhorne, in command of the second expedition in Mexico, who has killed six of the bandits who raided Glenn Springs, Tex., and captured 75, has reported to Gen. Funston that he is pursuing the remainder of the outlaw band. Langhorne's men rescued Jesse Deems and Monroe Payne, two Americans, who were carried off in the latest raid.

Futility of Knowledge.

"You can't make me believe a college education gets you anything," said the young man who had won two medals for dancing.

"Still, I always thought college fellows was awful swell," replied the girl.

"Notin' doin'! We got one of them in our office that always says 'whom' and 'notwithstandin', and say, I heard the boss callin' him down today the worst I ever seen. What's the use knowin' them kind of words if you can't talk back?"—Judge.

Twin Earthquakes.

Earthquakes which consist of two shocks separated by a brief interval of quiet or of two maxima of intensity are known as twin earthquakes. In Great Britain one in about every twenty earthquakes is a twin, and the strongest shocks experienced in that country belong to this variety. It is believed that twin earthquakes are due to impulses arising from two detached foci, separated in different cases from four to more than twenty miles, but lying along the same fault in the earth's crust.

Good Reason.

"I wouldn't be in Brown's shoes just now."
"Why not?"
"He left them in the cellar, and they dumped four tons of coal on them before Brown was up."

Stirring Saturday Specials AT WASHINGTON MARKET

We measure value by the yardstick of Quality. The world-old, world-wide test of Meats is quality. In the Meats we sell Quality consists of four essentials—tenderness, healthfulness, tenderness and nutritiveness. We sacrifice any of these and you sacrifice a certain measure of value that no price concession can offset.

Now, while holding fast to this Quality idea, we wish to impress upon the reader the fact that no market in Kingston can undersell or overvalue us, and in most instances our prices are the lowest for equal qualities.

SKETCHES OF TWO MEXICAN STATES

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C. May 19.—The recent raid of Mexican bandits in the Big Bend district, as the territory in the vicinity of Glenn Springs, Texas, is called, has resulted in the dispatch of pursuing troops across the border at a point opposite the village of Boquillas, a settlement of 35 people, according to the census of 1910, 280 miles southeast of El Paso. Heretofore the American punitive expedition has been confined to Chihuahua, but now Coahuila also is to be searched for marauders. This state on the Mexican border is described in the following war geography bulletin issued today by the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington:

"If extent of territory were the only consideration the American troopers now in pursuit of the bandits guilty of the Glenn Springs outrage would have an easier task searching Coahuila than those who are hunting for Villa and his men, for, although in size it is the third state in the Mexican republic, it is only three fourths as large as Chihuahua. Its area is equal to that of New York, Delaware and Maryland combined, but ranks only sixteenth in population among the states of the neighboring nation, with about as many people as the city of Washington, D. C.

"Coahuila has many natural resources. It is extremely rich in silver and copper mines, with extensive coal fields in the vicinity of Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, on the Texas border. Cattle raising formerly was the state's greatest source of wealth, immense herds finding excellent pasturage on the fertile plains, but in recent years irrigation has caused an enormous increase in the value of agricultural products. Corn, wheat, beans, sugarcane and peas are profitably grown, and in the southwestern section, known as the Laguna district, more cotton is raised than in any other part of the republic.

"One of the most valuable crops of Coahuila is the little fibre, which finds an eager market both in the United States and in Germany, where it is used for cordage and in the manufacture of baskets. It is of this fibre that the famous 'tilma' in the shrine at Guadalupe is woven. About this blanket the following interesting legend is told: At the close of the century which marked the conquest of Mexico by the Spaniards the Virgin Mary appeared miraculously before an Indian on the hill of Guadalupe and bade him tell his bishop to build a shrine on that spot. The Indian's message was disregarded on two occasions, but when the Virgin appeared a third time before her messenger she gave him a symbol, telling him to gather some flowers growing on the hillside, and take them to the bishop. These flowers the Indian wrapped in his 'tilma.' When he reached the cathedral the blossoms had disappeared and in their stead, on the inner folds of the little fibre blanket there was revealed the face of the Virgin in glowing colors, just as the imprint of the Saviour's face remained indelible on the kerchief of St. Veronica. The blanket hangs today under a tabernacle of silver and gold, in the shrine built by the bishop, and the colors have remained comparatively fresh for three centuries.

"Saltillo a town of about 35,000, founded by the Spaniards in 1586, is the capital of Coahuila. It is a popular health resort and is famous as the birthplace of Leona Vicario, the Joan of Arc of Mexico's war of independence. Here also was born the republic's poet of passion, Manuel Acuna, who at the height of his career committed suicide on account of an unhappy love affair.

"Torreon, in the center of the cotton belt, is a thriving manufacturing city of 15,000, with soap factories, rubber works, and packing houses in addition to its textile mills. The Parras district, in the same section of the state, is noted for its grapes which are said to rival in sweetness and flavor the famous products of the California, Malaga and Granda vineyards."

WILLIAM P. M. BOLAND

MONROE DOCTRINE STRONGER THAN EVER, SAYS BOLAND.

Monohk Lake, N. Y., May 19.—The Monroe Doctrine has been of inestimable benefit to the New World and is today stronger than ever, Representative William P. M. Boland of Missouri told the Conference on International Arbitration here today.

He said, in part: "It is now nearly a century since the Monroe Doctrine, so called, was announced by an American president in a purely domestic state document, an annual message to Congress, and yet, never was the doctrine more deeply rooted in the affection of the people, and never more firmly established as a principle of international law than today."

"The initial purpose of the Monroe Doctrine was to secure to the American nations a fair opportunity to work out their national destinies free from the fetters of European feuds and factions."

"If the Monroe Doctrine has kept the nations of Europe from being embroiled in American politics, it has also kept the American nations from being embroiled in the politics of Europe."

"The Monroe Doctrine has fully justified its existence in keeping the Americans out of the present conflict that has engulfed nearly the whole of the civilized world. Without it we would certainly have been involved if the opposing parties each held important territories on this side of the water."

"Strange to say instead of the Monroe Doctrine proving a source of irritation to the European powers it has been welcomed by them and tacitly acknowledged and encouraged. No European nation would now look with indifference upon a violation of that doctrine by another power. The good will of America, the reservoir of raw material for Europe, has been an important factor also in commanding respect. But the positive element after all has been that America had no interest in the quarrels of Europe."

The South Sea Finger Bowl.

Civilized man did not invent the finger bowl either in form or in use. It was used in the south sea islands some hundreds of years before Europeans and Americans found out that they were necessary to their own refinement. A bowl of water is handed around to every diner in a south sea house. This south sea finger bowl is half a coconut shell, beautiful, useful, practically unbreakable, yet not of sufficient worth to prevent its being thrown away tomorrow and replaced by a fresh one from the nearest palm.

Voted For Rural Credits

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, May 18.—In partaking in the debate on the floor of the house last Monday in respect to rural credits, Congressman Platt took occasion to say something regarding the importance of agriculture in New York state. He said in part: "Mr. Chairman, when the agricultural appropriation bill was under discussion, several weeks ago, one of my colleagues from New York spoke of the fact that New York was first in production of apples and some other agricultural products. Now, a matter of fact New York is one of the greatest agricultural states of the union and its representatives in this house are just as vitally interested in the enactment of rural-credit legislation along right lines as representatives of the Western or Southern states, although it is true that New York state farmers can, as a rule, borrow such money as they need at rates not exceeding and often lower than 6 per cent by mortgaging their farms. I may add that of the 43 representatives of the great state of New York in this house 14 represent districts that are chiefly agricultural. How many agricultural states have more than 14 representatives here?" Mr. Platt voted in favor of the bill as also did Congressman Ward.

Fatal Automobile Accident.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Boston, May 19.—One man was killed and one woman was probably fatally injured in automobile accidents early today. Albert S. Chesebrough, well known yacht designer of Bristol, R. I., was killed. He was pinned under his automobile when it dived from the road into Narragansett Bay. The other two crashes occurred in Boston streets. Mrs. Della Lee suffered a fractured skull when she was thrown from an automobile which collided with a post.

Congressman Ward at Home.

Congressman Ward was absent from Washington a few days last week, being called to his home on account of a surgical operation being performed on his ten year old daughter, Anna. The child is recovering very nicely.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, May 19.—Tutill McDowell has been in St. Louis to purchase horses and is expected at the sale and exchange stables of McDowell and Son, on North Main street, on Saturday with twenty-eight head of fine road and farm horses.

The Annual Institute of Sullivan County W. C. T. U. will be held at Bridgeville, June 1 and 2. Mrs. Helen J. Andrus of New York will be the conductor and deliver the evening address Friday.

Sixty prisoners from Elmira have been received at the Eastern New York Reformatory at Napanoch.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Goodes, of Buffalo, are receiving congratulations upon the arrival of a daughter in their home on Wednesday, May 17. Mrs. Goodes was Miss Vera Dutcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Dutcher of Ellenville.

Wells and Thornton have sold Chevrolet automobiles to Samuel Lipman; Samuel Olkum, David Farr, Lavarna Evans and Melvin C. Rodde, this week.

Highway Commissioner Hasbrouck is planning to start work on the Greenfield road at an early date with the money already in hand. He has been in consultation with Jacob O. Newkirk of Liberty, formerly of Greenfield, who has had a great deal of experience in road work, having built much of the stone road in Sullivan county, and is hoped to put him in charge of the work with other agricultural products. Now, Mr. Newkirk thinks he can build the road for $1,500 a mile after getting beyond the village limits. The town board expect to meet soon and go over the matter with the commissioners, so it may be considered from all angles, and the best course adopted.

All interested Sons of Veterans are requested to meet at the Scoresby Club House Monday evening next at 7:30 o'clock to make arrangements for the annual Memorial Day dinner.

The Men's Bible Class of the Reformed Church will give a social in the lecture room of the church Friday night of this week in honor of the ladies, who are cordially invited to be present.

The Publican ..... Van de Water; Narcissus Debut ..... Mr. Main; Vocal Solo—Somewhere a Voice is Calling ..... Miss Demarest; Jakey at the Kindergarten ..... Miss Lyon.

Selection ..... High School Orchestra; Duet (a)—O That we Two Were Maying ..... Misses Virginia and Pauline Taylor; The "Angelus" ..... Miss Lyon.

Solo (a)—My Love and I ..... Miss Lyon; (b) Invictus ..... Mr. Main; Monologue—Minnie at the Movies ..... Miss Lyon.

Ensemble—The Slumber Boat, Lullaby, Miss Lyon and Miss Demarest.

All the numbers were well received and heartily applauded.

Massage for Nervousness. Light—that is, surface—massage, is a good corrective for nervousness. Deep, seeking-the-bone massage, which is used for liver complaint and for obesity, is too severe for the nervous patient. Besides, so many of the nerves lie so near the skin that the region of the skin is the real seat of operation for cure. Light massage by coaxing the blood to the surface and inducing a new and stronger interflow among them feeds the nerves and strengthens them.

Meat Prices Held in Check Lay's Saturday Sale

Pure foods at substantial price reductions when the whole country is "kicking" against the high cost of living are among the attractions which this market offers to its patrons for Saturday. High cost of living may be one evidence of national prosperity, yet it hurts none the less to be compelled to pay perhaps a fourth more for the usual table supplies. Knowing the market conditions thoroughly and being convinced that there would be no downward tendency in prices soon, we have kept the costs of meats down for Saturday to the lowest possible notch. The items at alluring savings that appear below should bring big crowds here Saturday, rain or shine. Surely the price bulletin is remarkable from an economy standpoint.

Billy Treadwell's Sacrifice

A Story For Commemorative Days
By BARBARA PHEPPS

Billy Treadwell and his chum, Johnny Haywood, were lounging in Johnny's room, No. 42 University hall, when there was a rap at the door and a letter was handed in for Johnny. He opened it, read it and exclaimed:

"That's too bad!"

"What's too bad?" asked Billy.

"Why, my cousin, Bess Hinckley, who has been at school in Geneva ever since she was twelve years old, has come home. She writes me that she is dying to see an American college and will be down Saturday morning to spend the day with me. Saturday we play Claypoles."

"Cut the game?"

"Cut the game? Why, where will they get a pitcher to take my place?"

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Johnny. Of course it will be a sacrifice for me to spend a Saturday showing a young woman the college, but I'll meet your cousin, tell her of your engagement and how sorry you are and take her off your hands."

"Will you?" cried Johnny, grasping his chum's hands.

"I'll have to; there's no other way out of it for you."

On Saturday morning Billy met the train on which Miss Hinckley arrived. Seeing a pretty girl answering to Johnny's description of his cousin looking wildly about for some one, he walked up to her and asked:

"Cousin Bess?"

"Yes—how you have changed from the little boy I used to play with!"

"I've an auto outside," said Billy. "Let me take that wrap."

Billy led her to the auto. They got in and sailed away.

"We'll go up on to the hill, and I'll show you the college buildings. After that we'll do the country round about."

"I'm very anxious to see your chum, Mr. Treadwell, that you wrote me about."

"I wrote you about?" said Billy, pricking up his ears.

"Why, yes. Don't you remember saying that you had picked him out for me?"

"Did I say that? Oh, yes. Now I remember. Bill's a good fellow in his way. But—"

"But what?"

"Well, if I've picked him out for you where do I come in?"

"Oh, you're my cousin!"

"I see. Well, you can't see Billy today. He's pitcher in the varsity team, and they're playing the Claypoles to day."

"That's too bad."

"That's what he said when your letter came to say that you'd be down today."

They did the college buildings, then re-entered the auto and sailed away into the country. Billy addressed his companion as Cousin Bess and when they were in a secluded place endeavored to take a comely kiss, but, whether for propriety or that Billy's manner had passed from comely to lower-like, she would not permit.

"My kisses," she said, "I'll keep for my fiancé."

"What fiancé?"

"Why, the one you have picked out for me, of course."

"Bumpty," said Billy. He was about to add, "Very well, I'll take one now," but thought better of it and refrained.

That was a delightful day for Billy, and he was accorded one comely kiss at parting. His conscience doubtless smote him, for when Johnny returned from the game Billy kept out of his way. However, the next morning Billy received his chum's thanks for having sacrificed himself in taking a girl around instead of enjoying a holiday.

Several days later Johnny went into his chum's room with an open letter.

"What the dickens does this mean, Billy? Bess writes me thanking me for my kindness last Saturday and says in a postscript, 'Never mind your chum, Mr. Treadwell. He will not interest me.'"

"I cannot tell a lie, Johnny. Your cousin mistook me for you, and I hadn't the heart to correct her."

"Well, I like that! And she supposed it was I who was her attendant?"

"She did."

"What does she mean by saying, 'Never mind you; you wouldn't interest her.'"

"A strict regard for truth compels me to say that she's wrapped up in you."

"Do you really think so?"

Of course Billy's regard for truth failed in the end, and he was exposed.

"What does she mean by saying, 'Never mind you?'"

"Why, you see, Johnny, she was so wrapped up in—Oh, you can never tell what a girl means by what she says. They are no more to be understood than so many Greek particles."

"H'm," replied Johnny, unconvinced.

"I don't think this case is so unintelligible. Bess, supposing that she was talking to me, being really fascinated by that happy way you have with the creatures, tumbled to all the lies you told her and, like a wolf in sheep's clothing—I don't mean that exactly—"

"To tell the truth, Johnny, it was she who downed me. Take me to see her for a week end, won't you?"

John, with a mock grimace, consented, promising to smooth Billy's way in accounting for his deception. But he only made the matter worse. However, Bess thought little of the trick that had been played upon her. Indeed, she considered it a compliment. At any rate, she and Billy are now life partners.

Uncle Eben.

"De man dat can't be on de level," said Uncle Eben, "must expect to have a lot of ups an' downs in dis life."

YOU CAN ALMOST TALK TO HER
—THIS 8400 r. p. m. CHALMERS

They're buying motor cars today as they're hiring men—on ability.

Blue eyes, brown hair, a rugged jaw, mean something—but not so much as they used to.

They're seeking ability. And that is not always measured in stature, weight and reach.

Likewise in a car. They look her over, learn her wheel-base, note the tire sizes, ask the bore and stroke of the engine and then—

They make her perform.

They make her hit the trail, they roll her up the steepest hill. They let her out on the straightaway, and they make her accelerate at slow speeds.

It's the only way to judge a car. And we're particularly glad, because we have in the 8400 r.p.m. Chalmers a car that answers every human wish.

You can almost talk to this animal. You can lead her anywhere. We know of no one who has ever called on her for too much, nor asked of her anything she couldn't deliver. She's like a young ballplayer who keeps driving 'em over the right-field fence.

She's there. And the reason is her magnificent 8400 r. p. m. engine. When history in our business is written, 8400 r. p. m. will occupy a thick chapter.

Simply because at the lowest speeds she saves her energy, turns up only 500 r. p. m. at 10 miles an hour, and 1000 r. p. m. at 20 miles an hour.

Thus using only 18 per cent of her power at such speeds and saving 62 to 80 per cent for winding, hilly roads, bad turns, and on occasions when a little extra power gives you possession of the road.

One ride of five miles behind the wheel and you'll own it. Ask your dealer about Chalmers service inspection coupons, negotiable at all Chalmers dealers everywhere. This system is a most important consideration in buying your car.

LET UP PROTEINS.

Avoid "Spring Fever" by Cutting Down Fuel.

SUMMER DEMANDS LESS FOOD

Warm Weather Means You Can Replace Hot Soups, Thick Gravies, Heavy Sweets and Rich Pastries With Greens, Salads, Fish and Fruits.

It will be only a few days now before some one will be heard to complain of "that tired feeling" so inseparably connected with springtime. But why not try a little modern therapeutics and see if you cannot escape that tired feeling this year? The tired feeling comes from only one thing, and that is an overworked system. To use the hackneyed but nevertheless illuminating comparison, the body may be likened to a steam heating plant which has been going at a pretty high pressure all winter, but now, when the weather becomes warmer, we must open the furnace door, shut down the drafts and keep the fire as low as possible if we do not want to be overheated. Similarly we must cut down the fuel supply of the body with the approach of warm weather. It is foolish to keep on stoking our engines when the higher temperature about us does not require that the body work so hard to keep warm.

The only way to keep cool and thus not feel tired is by avoiding those foods which create heat or build tissue too generously. First of these are all the fats and then the starches or sweets. Let us therefore avoid the alluring doughnut, the elusive croquette, the pastry tray and the meats with rich gravies, for foods that are fat or heavy should be shunned in the changing season, when the body most particularly cries out for foods that are cooling, refreshing and light. Abandon with puddings, discard the pot roast, and in their places substitute salads, fish, fruits and the uncooked cereals. Give the body a chance to work off the clinkers of winter without choking it up with new fuel. Patronize nature's medicines and you won't need the doctor's. Drink plenty of water, lemon and fruit juice. Cut down your helping by a third and see if you don't feel as sprightly as a robin instead of logy and weak. Your spring tonic is on the vegetable stand, and your spring prescription is to eat less and drink more. The group of foods called proteins, of which meat is most important, are those which, science tells us, build up body tissues. Now, the spring is not the season to build up tissue unless we have been overworked during winter; also the protein of meat is particularly likely to leave a residue of uric acid in the body. But our aim now is to house clean the system, and we want to avoid complicating the house-cleaning by eating foods which will leave still more refuse. Elimination of meat almost entirely is one of the wisest plans for summer health. Cheese also is not an advisable diet for most.

SETTING HER CAP.

One of the New Bath Helmets That Are Ever So Smart. Spanish modes influence even our bathing togs this spring. The cut shows an ultra cap of best quality red rubber, faintly embossed and rigged with a back flap that may be tied up on to the band when not actually protecting the ears.

READY TO DIVE.

rubber, faintly embossed and rigged with a back flap that may be tied up on to the band when not actually protecting the ears.

The Vogue of Wicker.

Many of the wicker materials—reed, rattan, cane and bamboo—are of Asiatic origin, Singapore being the world market for them. Reeds are used both whole and split.

Bamboo, while not strictly wicker, is often used with rattan or with grass matting. Its chief merit is its cheapness.

Grass, too, is hardly wicker, but is used as an outer textual covering rather than as a material for construction, the base being some light wood like willow.

Baked Breast of Lamb.

Remove the skin, put the meat in a stewpan, cover with boiling water and simmer twenty-five minutes. Bone, dredge with flour, pepper and salt, roll and skewer into shape, add one cupful of the water in which the lamb was cooked and bake until tender and brown, basting frequently. Serve with cucumber sauce.

Standardized.

"Do you like Welsh rabbits?" "I prefer real rabbits." "Why so?" "Then you know what you're eating. Nature makes all her rabbits alike." Louisville Courier-Journal

A Mad Woman

By ALAN HINSDALE

When I married Lucy she was the personification of modesty, timidity, shyness. She was equally mercurial. One moment the world to her was a garden of roses, the next a universal cemetery.

I was clerking on $70 a month when I married her, and we went to live in a cottage standing by itself on the outskirts of the city. The nearest house was half a mile away. Of course we couldn't afford to keep a servant, so Lucy was cook and housemaid. Fortunately her mother had taught her how to prepare viands for an ordinary meal, and I usually got home from business in time to help her with the dinner.

Our only trouble was Lucy's loneliness while I was away, as I was all day except Sunday. We had not thought of this when we engaged the cottage. Indeed, we were too young and inexperienced to think of most of our necessities. Every morning when I left my wife she would cling to me so that it was hard to get away from her. But in the evening when I returned the happy smile on her face and light in her eyes were delicious.

Our cottage was two stories and a half high. The half story was nothing more than an open space under the roof. It was approached by a rude staircase and entered by a trapdoor in its floor furnished with a bolt underneath. We would have used it for a storeroom, which means a place for family accumulations, but nothing had as yet accumulated. Indeed, we hadn't enough to furnish the house.

One day on returning from business I had reached a wood through which I usually made a short cut to the house and was passing through it when I heard a shot, which seemed to come from the direction of my home. I ran through the wood, but before emerging from it heard another shot, followed by the sound of the falling of shattered glass. Visions of my little wife being murdered lent me additional speed, and, clearing the wood at a bound, I had a view of my house.

Under a window in the garret stood my wife with my fowling piece in her hands, pointing it upward. Her back was toward me, so she did not see me.

"You miserable, contemptible thing!" she cried to some invisible object. "I just wish you'd give me half a chance. I'd teach you how to break up my china set that my mother gave me for a wedding present."

"For heaven's sake, Lucy," I cried, "what are you talking to?" She was so angry that either she didn't see me or wouldn't notice me. I saw the frightened face of a man for a fraction of a second at the window in the garret and heard a simultaneous report from my shotgun, followed by more falling glass. I sprang to Lucy and, seizing the gun, wrenched it out of her hands.

"What does this all mean?" I said sharply.

"That miserable thing up there has broken all our best furniture; the dinner set Aunt Harriet gave me and the tea set mother gave me."

"Who is he? What is he? Where does he come from?"

"He came into the house pretending he wanted something to eat, but finding me alone, he demanded money. I told him I had none to give him, and he began to break things and threatened to kill me with a long knife if I didn't give him all the cash there was in the house. I told him he'd find it all hidden under a raft in the storeroom. He went up there. I followed him and bolted the door after him. I ran downstairs, expecting to find on the sofa, but seeing the wreck of our things, I began to get mad. The more ruined pieces I found the madder I got. Seeing your gun standing in a corner, I took it and, going outside, saw the man at the window. He had made a rope of some stuff he'd found in the garret and was going to let himself down when I shot at him and drove him back. Just think of that beautiful tea set that my mother—"

I had heard enough. I told Lucy to go somewhere and telephone a police station, while I relieved her of her sentry duty. The man's face appeared at the window again, and she tried to snatch the gun from me to get another crack at him. I told her to go at once, and she went off, turning once or twice to fire an angry look at the window.

After she had gone I spoke to the man and told him he might as well make no effort to get away, and be quiet. This he knew without my telling him, and I had no trouble with him till a patrol wagon came with several policemen and Lucy. The rascal was let out of his trap and taken away.

The excitement being over, Lucy was quite ready for a "good cry" on my shoulder, but I think this was not so much due to being let down as at the loss of our belongings, which could not be restored by punishing the man who had broken them, for he had nothing to pay with.

However, when our relations and friends heard the story of Lucy's trapping the robber and her "madness" at his having broken up her property they duplicated everything he had smashed, so that we were not only as well off as before, but I was relieved of anxiety at leaving my wife unprotected during the day. However, when our lease expired, fearing that some other burglar might frighten her without making her mad and thus get an advantage of her, I decided to move into the city.

In All Time of Our Prosperity

Heir to Fortune Finds Money Won't Buy Love

By JULIE WILBOR TOMPKINS
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

"Well, will you look at that!" muttered Tom for at least the fiftieth time. He had been saying it at intervals, sitting on his trunk in his little bunk of a room, ever since he had mastered the meaning of the letter. The expression had not varied by a hair's breadth except once, when he had automatically substituted, "Well, I'll be hanged!"

Thirty thousand dollars—thirty—thousand dollars! And for three years it had been hunting for him over two continents, while he in serene ignorance whistled at his stoking, lived a frugal life and tried to put by $5 a month. He looked down at the sleeve of his flannel shirt, grimed with cinders; at his broken, blackened hands at his frayed overalls, washed to a bluish white. All at once concrete pictures of what this was going to mean to him, this stunning, bewildering event, began to crop up before his blinking eyes. He saw a shining vision of patent leather shoes, trousers creased in front and in back, a diamond ring, theater tickets, restaurant dinners and—Mary, Mary Ryan!

A sudden wide yell of pure joy burst from him. Springing to his feet, he began to cakewalk, then to dance, leaping up and down the tiny room, slipping, bucking, smashing his great boots against the wall, letting out his voice in a jumble of song and war-whoop that made the room tremble.

"Mr. Fogarty! For mercy's sake!" The landlady was pale and breathless. "Do you love me, Molly, darling? Let your answer be a kiss!" roared Tom, and, flinging both arms about her, he gave her the desired answer with resounding heartiness. Then he whistled off down the stairs, four steps at a time, with a whoop that opened every door on the way. The landlady stood gasping; then she slowly shook her head.

"No, that ain't no drunk," she decided. "I guess it's a girl." And she smiled slyly as she put out the gas Tom had left lighted.

In the street Tom returned to a measure of dignity, though his heels seemed to be ramming holes in the pavement at every stride, and his heart pushed up his chest like an internal balloon. It was par day, and in his pocket was a month's wages. By the same token he knew where to find a sufficient number of the boys. There were a dozen of them lounging about the little tables or leaning against the bar at Samson's. Tom's heart warm-perhaps you can do better. There'll be ladies to have for the night now."

"Do better? Do better than Mary Ryan?" demanded Tom, his voice rising. "Is there any one here who thinks I or any man could do better? If there is will he just stop out and say so? I want to hear him."

But nobody volunteered. They were all ready to swear that no living being could do better, and fresh drinks complimented their judgment.

"How do you know Jimmy ain't skated over there to get ahead of you?" asked one presently. "You can do a lot with a girl if you go at her with a rush. And he went out mighty sudden."

Tom's face clouded, and he put down his glass with a thump.

"By thunder! And me loafing here being sorry for him!" he muttered. He drew out a ten dollar bill and threw it down on the counter.

"There, boys, use that up! I've got business down the street," he said, turning to go.

"Good luck to you!" they shouted after him and drank deep to his fortune, and to Mary, and to the wedding, and to the wedding guests.

Tom's face grew more and more clouded as he hurried along the street. McCarthy had had somewhat the upper hand with Mary lately. What if he had seized the occasion to whirl in, carrying the girl off her feet, and seal her irrevocably his before she knew of the golden attraction that had been added to Tom?

Matters looked bad enough when Tom entered the Ryan parlor. Jimmy was black at the interruption rather than complacent, so evidently the worst had not happened, but Mary herself did not look too well pleased, and her flushed cheeks and the way Jimmy's chair was drawn up to her showed that things had been moving fast in the wrong direction. Tom quailed under her coldness; then he had an inspiration.

"Excuse my intruding, Mary," he said easily, "but I just dropped in to say goodby. I'll be so busy these next few days buying clothes and going to the theater I won't have much time for calls. But I couldn't go off without a goodby shake from you."

Mary was all round eyes. Jimmy was suspicious, but evidently relieved. "Wherever are you going?" she demanded.

"Well, Niagara Falls first," said Tom, leaning back and crossing his knees, "then perhaps California. I've always wanted to see what traveling was like when you wasn't shoving coal into the engine every two minutes. I'm going to look about the world a bit."

"But—but—you'll lose your job," stammered Mary.

Tom laughed. "Well, I should guess! I'm out of that sort of work for life. I'm thinking of buying into some good business."

"Is the man clean crazy?" She was beginning to lose her temper.

"Oh, didn't you know I'd come into a fortune?" he asked, in surprise. "It's about $30,000, I guess. I haven't counted it up very particular yet. I thought Jimmy would have told you. He was drinking my health over the news not an hour ago."

Mary turned indignant eyes on Jimmy, who was plainly miserable. "No, he didn't mention it," she said in an ominous tone.

"Oh, well, likely it slipped his mind," said Tom affably, rising to go. "I was hoping you'd go to the theater with me tomorrow night. I'll be having two orchestra chairs, or a box maybe. But if Jimmy has bespoken your evening—"

"No, he hasn't," she said decidedly. "I'll go with you, and very glad, Tom."

"That's right. I'll be round on time, and I'll bring a hack if it's raining." And Tom went off in triumph. Mary followed him to the door with soft looks and a hard glint in the corner of her eye for Jimmy.

But as he walked away Tom's exultation cooled. A mother who has soft heartedly mourned her runaway child is apt to turn on him in righteous wrath when she gets him safely back.

And so Tom, newly secure of his sweetheart, found himself seized with sudden indignation. It was just his money she was after. She had dark looks enough for him till he dangled that before her. Well, if that was it Jimmy could have her and welcome.

There were others—ladies—to be had for the asking, as Stinson had said. Miss Mary Ryan would see whether he was the soft fool she took him for. And so some of the glory was off his new fortune already, and he had met one of the sorrows of wealth within two hours of his acquiring it.

He was moody enough when he rejoined the boys. Under their jovial welcome and the flattery of his new importance his spirits revived, but in an ugly, reckless fashion, very unlike the boyish glee that had set him bounding about his little room. Newcomers drifted in, and he drank with every one until things became a hazy blank.

Then after a long interval he found himself alone in the deserted street with some appalling need to speak to Mary on him.

After another interval he saw that he was in front of her house and, hearing some one bawling an incoherent summons, wondered distantly whose voice it was. Mary was evidently clearer on that point. The front window was suddenly jerked open, and she leaned out, wrapped in a shawl.

"Tom, for mercy's sake, shut up and go home!" The angry whisper descended on him like a whip. "How dare you come to a decent girl's house like that? Don't you never come near me again—you nor your old fortune! Do you understand? Now, get out, go home, and don't you ever try to set your foot in this house again—drunk or sober!"

The shock stunned Tom a little. He went away without a word as the window slammed down and in some way reached home and bed.

Long hours later consciousness slowly came back to him. His aching head demanded an explanation, and the letter lying on the table supplied it with a little throb of excitement. The momentary joy faltered and sank as he remembered how he had found Mary out for a mere fortune hunter—after him for his money, though another man's arm had been within an inch of her waist a moment before. And then out of the mists and vagueness came like a burst of sunshine the knowledge that she had thrown him down because he had drunk, had turned on him as he deserved, without a pang for his money and had given it to him straight from her angry heart—the darling! And so the joy began to steal back.

He had meant to make straight for the patent leather shoes and the black cutaway coat that had been his dream of years, but instead he put on his old Sunday suit, and, after a shave and a shampoo, he turned to Mary's. She opened the door at his ring, but did not ask him in. There was only hostility in her tear reddened eyes.

"Mary dear," he said humbly, "will you just let me in to apologize and tell you how it came about? And then I'll go away and not bother you, for I'm not fit to say your name."

She wavered a moment; then, ungraciously enough, drew back the door to let him in.

Half an hour later she lifted her flushed face from his shoulder.

"I always liked you best, Tom, but Jimmy made love so persuasive, and you didn't seem to care like him, and it's terrible upsetting to be courted. And when he came all out of breath and said it was just love, I was running—the cheat! He must have got me," she said, with a long sigh. Then her face grew serious. "And, mind you, Tom, if ever there's any more doings like last night, fortune or no fortune, I'll wish it had been Jimmy. Do you understand?"

He drew her back to him. "God bless you for that!" he said. "It has been a lesson to me. I'll never drink a drop of liquor as long as I live."

The Poppies of Laurium. Some years ago there was seen in a silver mine of Laurium a curious instance of the resuscitating power of light after many years. The silver mines of Laurium were abandoned more than 2,000 years ago as unworkable and were filled for the most part with the slag from the workings of the miners.

It was discovered, however, that this slag contained plenty of silver, which could easily be rendered available by up to date appliances. Accordingly it was removed to the furnace and, when next the mine was visited, a wonderful transformation was found to have taken place. Instead of a heap of rubbish, the mine has become a gorgeous flower garden. The entire space was covered with a brilliant show of poppies. This profuse vegetable life, it is asserted, belonged to the age in which the mines were worked. Twenty centuries old, therefore, were those poppy seeds, yet when the removal of the slag allowed the light to fall upon them, they sprang into life and bloom under its influence.

During the reign of the Burmese kings teak was the royal wood, and the king had a right to all teak. The place of the kings in Mandalay is almost entirely built of this wood, and one of the throne rooms is supported by fine pillars of teak. The bamboo forests in Burma, which sometimes grow to a height of from fifty to sixty feet and are a glory in themselves, are but an undergrowth above which tower the teak trees, giants of strength, dignity and beauty, attaining a height of from 150 to 160 feet. The teak trees grow several hundred yards apart, three mature trees to the acre being considered a good yield. Beauty is not, however, their chief feature, for their wood is used extensively for home building both in Burma and India and in Europe for men-of-war. Its durability is due to an essential oil, and when used as a backing for armor plates it is found that the bolts and rivets do not rust owing to the oil contained in the wood.

The place of the kings in Mandalay is almost entirely built of this wood, and one of the throne rooms is supported by fine pillars of teak. The bamboo forests in Burma, which sometimes grow to a height of from fifty to sixty feet and are a glory in themselves, are but an undergrowth above which tower the teak trees, giants of strength, dignity and beauty, attaining a height of from 150 to 160 feet. The teak trees grow several hundred yards apart, three mature trees to the acre being considered a good yield. Beauty is not, however, their chief feature, for their wood is used extensively for home building both in Burma and India and in Europe for men-of-war. Its durability is due to an essential oil, and when used as a backing for armor plates it is found that the bolts and rivets do not rust owing to the oil contained in the wood.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Sleepy Time Story That Will Interest Boys and Girls.

A TINY WOODS CREATURE.

Wise Ways of a Little Animal—How a Shrewd, Small Beast Maneuvers to Preserve Its Life—Walking in the Forest—Sport For Young Folks.

"Now, children," said Uncle Ben to Polly Ann and Little Ned, "I am going to tell you about

THE LITTLE "FRAID ONE."

The Indians call the wood mouse Little Tookhees, and because of his timid, modest ways he is also called the "Fraid One."

Tookhees builds the doorway of his home beneath a mossy stone in order to be well protected from his enemies, for bird and beast and fish are ever on the outlook for little "Fraid One." To his timid glance every tree limb holds at least one Hoo-koo-koo, or horned owl. Every bush or clump of trees could shelter Mooween, the bear, or Kagoos, the bloodthirsty weasel, and below every friendly only Skookum, the fat, fat trout, lies in wait should Tookhees swim too close to where he lives.

So in order to be very, very certain that the coast is clear the "Fraid One" makes a false start from his doorway, looks quickly around, gives a squeak that can be plainly heard most anywhere and scurries back into his house. So very sure are his enemies that the little mouse has seen them and will never dare to come out again that they go away to some other hunting ground. But if they had waited a moment they would have seen Tookhees poke his tiny nose out of his front door, look very carefully about and then go on his way to attend to what ever errands he may have to do.

By little jumps and leaps he dodges in and out among the leaves and grasses, never for any length of time showing himself in the open.

These little creatures travel mostly at dusk, when they are not easily seen, and in order to protect their nest they tunnel to it from quite some distance, so that one watching will not suspect where it is hidden. The wood mice are neighbors, sociable little folks, visiting the different colonies. The children of the wood are usually tame little creatures if one has patience to win their confidence, but it is not always a kindness to them, as in becoming tame they lose much of their protective instinct and soon become easy prey to their enemies.

"Basket Upset."

A very interesting game is called "basket upset." The game is played this way:

All the players sit around the room, with one player in the center. The one in the center gives every player the name of a fruit, and then the one in the center gives a sentence, using the name of the fruit. If the player calls the name of the fruit you have you must jump up, turn around and sit down before the player in the center can get your seat. If the one in the center says "Basket upset" every one must change seats.

Quiltmaking For Girls.

Little girls will be glad to know that patchwork quilts are again the fashion and that they can make them very easily. Just cut nine perfectly square patches and sew them together so that the colors in the center make a kind of cross. Then mother will put them all together when you have squares enough made. Any little girl ought to be able to make a patchwork quilt.

HIS FORMAL REPRIMAND.

It Was Not Exactly the Kind He Was Asked to Administer.

Dr. Simon Parvin, an English clergyman, was at times absurdly absent-minded. Once while he was visiting in the home of a very great lady who employed a large staff of servants, whom she kept under extremely rigid control, it chanced that two young footmen fell out about a pretty housemaid who had coquetted with both and so far forgot themselves as to engage in fistfights. The old countess was indignant. Her first intention was to dismiss the culprits, but they were excellent servants, and, moreover, the repentant maid tearfully interceded for them. The countess relented so far as to reduce the sentence to a formal reprimand before the other servants—a reprimand in the nature of a moral lecture to be duly administered by her distinguished guest.

At her earliest request—she was herself confined to her room by gout—Dr. Parvin, a man of imposing presence and resonant voice, permitted himself to be escorted to the servants' hall. On his return she sent for him to come to her chamber to relate the result of his mission.

"A fine couple," said Dr. Parvin. "I should say, an excellent match."
"Match?" inquired the countess. "What match? Has the silly girl made up her mind between them?"
"I vow, I thought she meant to fill them both, and serve the loobies right. Pray tell me, how did John and Thomas receive their reprimand?"

"John? Thomas? Reprimand?" echoed Dr. Parvin vaguely; then, with a sudden dimming flash of memory: "Dear me, I fear I have made a singular mistake! When I entered the room the younger servants were at the far end in a group, and the butler and housekeeper were together, quite near, immediately in front of me, in fact, standing side by side, and—in short, madam, I married them!"

He had, indeed; but, although astonished, they were fortunately not unwilling. They had, it happened, long been contemplating matrimony and were deterred only by fear of the countess's disapproval. Believing that she would not disapprove of the act of her eminent guest, they had readily accepted Dr. Parvin in his error. The countess was angry, but her anger fell chiefly upon the absent-minded divine. She gave him a piece of her mind that—if he had been any one else—he would not easily have forgotten.—Youth's Companion.

Two Ways of Studying Music.

Picture to yourself a little girl of seven or eight seated before that ponderous and portentous mass of iron, steel, wood, wires and hammers which we call a "piano-forte" (sixty pounds of tender, delicate humanity trying to express itself through a solid ton), her less dangleing unconformably in space, her little fingers trying painfully to find the right key and at the same time to keep in a correct position, struggling hard the while to relate together two strange things, a curious black dot, on a page and an ivory key two feet below it, for neither of which she feels much affection. And then picture to yourself the same child at her mother's knee or with other children, singing with joy and delight a beautiful song.—Thomas Whitney Sutter in Atlantic.

A Matter of Money.

A wealthy stockbroker who gave an imposing dinner, says the London Telegraph, dilated with much pride, but with mingled English, on the delicacies that he had provided. Everything in season and out of season, he declared, was at the disposal of his guests.

"I notice you have no aspirates," observed one of them quietly.

"No more I have," replied the stockbroker, with crestfallen visage, "but if money can get 'em," he added, "I'll have some of the best in the market next time you're here."

THE WORD "LOVE."

In the Orient It Means to Like or Is Used to Express Good Will.

The word "love" has been more highly specialized in the west than in the east. In its proper English use it means only that ardent, amorous feeling which cannot be created by will and design. In the west the word "love" has been relieved of the function of expressing the less ardent desires, such as the terms "to like," "to have good will toward" and "to be well disposed toward" simply.

Not so in the east. The word "like," meaning "to be favorably inclined toward," is not found either in the Bible or in the Arabic tongue. In the English version of the Bible it is used in two places, but the translation is incorrect. In the twenty-fifth chapter of Deuteronomy and the seventh verse, "If the man like not to take his brother's wife," should be rendered "If the man 'consent' not," and in the fourth chapter of Amos, the fifth verse, "For this liketh you, O ye children of Israel," is in the original, "For this ye 'loved,' O ye children of Israel." In any standard concordance of the Bible the Hebrew verb sheb—to love—precedes these quotations.

So to us orientals the only word which can express any cordial inclination of approval is "love." One loves his wife and children and loves grapes and figs and meat, if he loves these things. An employee says to an employer, "If you 'love' to work for me according to this agreement you can."

It is nothing uncommon for one to say to a casual acquaintance whom he likes, "I must say, salibi (friend), that I love you!" I know of no equivalent in the Arabic for the phrase, "I am interested in you." "Love" and "hate" are the usual terms by which to express approval and disapproval, as well as real love and hatred.

From all this it may be seen that when the Great Oriental Teacher said to his countrymen, who considered all other claims that their own as their enemies, "Love your enemies," he did not mean that they should be enamored of them, but that they should have good will toward them. We cannot love by will and design, but we certainly can will to be well disposed even toward those who, we believe, have ill will toward us.—Abraham Mitrie Rihony in Atlantic Monthly.

SAINTS OF ILLS AND TRADES.

Holy Friendships Consolated Pious People in the Middle Ages.

The trustful and childlike piety of the middle ages believed that the citizens of heaven were interested in every phase of men's lives, and there was not a single trade, profession or occupation that did not boast a special patron, while certain diseases were thought to be cured and certain visitations ward off through the intercession and agency of particular saints.

Thus St. Andrew was the patron of fishermen, St. Isidore of husbandmen, St. Christopher of porters, St. Mark of lawyers, St. Cosmas and Damian of doctors, St. Joseph of carpenters, St. Crispin of shoemakers, St. Vitus of actors, St. Gregory of singers, St. Dismas (supposed name of the good thief of criminals condemned to death, St. Apollonia was believed to cure toothache, St. Blaise sore throat, St. Clare and Lucy sore eyes, while St. Benedict preserved his clients from poison and St. Hubert from the bite of mad dogs.

"Men," says Montaigne, "lived in a tender and intimate familiarity with those forefathers whom God had evidently called to himself and whose sanctity the church has proclaimed. From the king and the pontiff to the poorest workman each had a special protector in heaven, and in the battles, dangers and sorrows of life these holy friendships exercised a most consoling and strengthening influence."—Irish World.

THROW AWAY YOUR RUBBISH.

The Wisdom of Cleaning Out Accumulations of Gowns and Mustines.

In some houses the first thing that greets one is a faint musty odor arising from carpets which have grown old, but which, though probably swept frequently, have never been sent to the cleaner's and, being down for years, have accumulated deposits of dust underneath them. In old houses, too, the flooring will have shrunk and provided receptacles for insects under the carpets. Constant traffic and the soil of the street brought in on dirty boots also get into both carpet and flooring.

It is cheaper to do away with rubbish of all kinds than to suffer the results in ill health. Bedrooms are often used as receptacles for stores of old clothes, old trunks and other things, the occupants forgetting that these things are but so much cubic capacity cut off from the air space of the room and that they harbor germs and cause infection.

If household furnishings are worn out and there is difficulty in renewing them, better eliminate them than retain them to the detriment of health. The bare room is a healthy room. If rooms require repainting have them distempered instead. Paperhangers are at a discount just now, and the cleanly distemper which many women who are handy can manage by themselves is healthier and cleaner than a cheap and soiled paper.

Cottage Bedspread.

Nothing is more appropriate for the summer cottage than a bedspread decorated with colonial applique embroidery, which is nothing more or less than patchwork in a glorified state. Unbleached muslin is used for the spread, and it is bound with an inch and a half border of blue chambray. A design in vines and flowers is cleverly carried out, with blue and yellow chambray for the flowers and green for the vines. A long sham to cover both pillows may be worked out in the same manner.

Rice With Cream Sauce and Cheese.

Throw half a cupful of rice into boiling water. After twenty minutes drain in a colander and wash with cold water. Pack in a deep dish and reheat in the oven. Make a cream sauce and add half a cupful of grated cheese. Pour over hot rice and serve.

CIRCUS WAS HIRING MEN

"The circus ground" attracted a busy scene this morning when the first section drew in at an early hour and from then on until the big top was raised there was not a moment wasted. Owing to the fact that one hundred and fifty of the canvasmen quit the job in Trenton, the circus was short handed and this morning any man looking for a job was engaged as a laborer. Just how many took the opportunity of seeing life with the circus is not known. The circus is having no "labor troubles" of the kind usually meant by that phrase. It is merely undergoing the usual series of desertions that come when the opening of the season is rainy, caused by new men who joined the show, thinking the life was an easy one, "getting cold feet," literally and figuratively, when they find they have to do real work in unpleasant weather.

Turned on the Gas.

G. Onofio, who has leased a store of Mrs. L. F. Fellows on Main street, turned on the gas there without getting the consent of the Gas Company on Wednesday night, and in doing this he nearly caused an explosion and the asphyxiation of Mrs. Irving Myer and family, who live over the store. Some of the outlets in the store had no fixtures attached and the gas began escaping in such a volume that the store was filled, as well as the rooms above, with its fumes. Officer Ricketson was summoned and he in turn summoned Superintendent Walsh and the gas was shut off. It is a criminal offense to turn on the gas without the Gas Company's consent.—Saugerties Post.

School Directors Organize.

School directors of the third supervisory district of Ulster county met at Ellenville on Tuesday for organization. DuBois Cole of Denning was elected chairman; Henry J. Shuster of Wawarsing, secretary; Hebron Sheldon of Rochester and William Quick of Marbletown, inspectors of election. The election will be held the third Tuesday in June, to elect a successor to Superintendent John M. Schoonmaker. The other members of the board of directors are James Van Valkenburg, Denning; E. S. Terwilliger, Wawarsing; Joseph Miller, Rochester; Leroy Krom, Marbletown.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, May 18.—Lee Fohl declares—but got boastfully—that his Indian crew is on top of the American League heap because it has been playing championship baseball.

"Team work is the real secret of our success so far," asserts the manager of the Cleveland Squad. "The boys are playing together. Individual starrng is an unknown quantity with us now. And, best of all, the utmost harmony prevails. When you get such a combination you usually find a team that is up near the top."

"Our pitchers are going good. Some folks think they will crack later on. It wouldn't surprise me if they pitched even better baseball when warmer weather comes. Two or three of my slabs are 'hot day' pitchers. Yet they have been able to win games in near zero weather and hold the opposition to a small number of hits and runs."

"Yes, we have been getting some of the 'breaks.' But isn't that part of baseball? Furthermore, we haven't had more than our share. To some folks it seems that a few of our victories have been lucky. But those who have analyzed our record find that most of the so-called luck we have had has been nothing else but the seizing of an opportunity when it offered and then riding through on it to victory."

"Those who say everything has broken well for us overlook the fact that Ray Chapman, our s.o.b., has been laid up with a bad knee. Chapman ranks as one of the best shortfielders in the game. This loss naturally has weakened us to some extent, although Wambegans, has filled in the gap very well."

"Are you fellows nourishing pennant hopes?" We asked.
"Our whole thought now is to win today's ball game," answered Fohl. "We aren't dealing in futures. Our business is that of the present. We are going after every game just as if that one game meant the pennant. That's the only way."

"How about Speaker? How much has his presence meant?"

"Much," was Fohl's reply. "Before the coming of Tris the team itself ranked only ordinary. But when Tris got into the lineup it acted like an electric vibrator on the rest of the boys. They knew what Tris could do. They knew about his wonderful fielding skill and about great batting. Then they sat down and re-figured their chances."

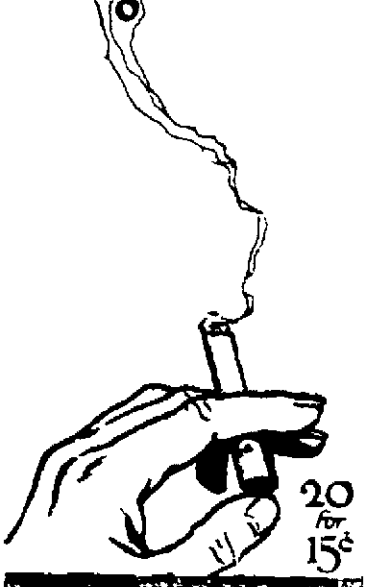

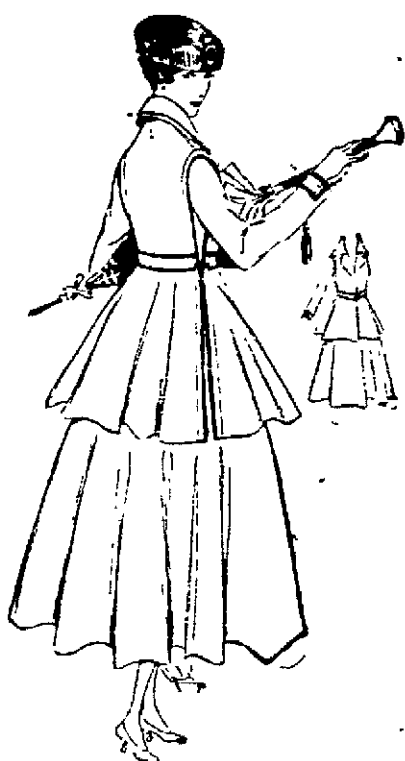

"Without Speaker the boys figured they might be in the fight. With Speaker they decided they would be in it. Tris filled them with pep and fighting spirit—and the result is apparent now in the standing of clubs."

"The Indians in 11 home games so far this season have drawn 34,000. Their total home attendance in 1915 was 154,000. Should they go home from their eastern trip in first place, it is certain that during the following 10 games the attendance surely will total beyond 65,000. That would mean then that the attendance for 20 games in 1916 would be greater than for all the home contests last season."

As a road attraction the Indians are the real thing in the Johnson circuit just now. If they keep drawing at the present rate, they will have played to more abroad crowds by June than they did in all their road games a year ago.

And in the meantime, Jim Dunn, the new owner of the club, is smiling a smile that continues to linger.

Hot Liners.

The Indians have the scalping habit. They took Walter Johnson's yesterday. And they did it when a victory for the Nationals would have given them first place.

If the world champs don't get started soon they won't have a look in next fall in the big purse. The Browns took them into camp yesterday.

Eight straight for the Giants. Who is going to stop them? They jumped up another notch yesterday.

Those pesky Athletics are showing lots of life these days. The White Sox were their victims yesterday.

Both the leaders—Braves and Dodgers tied for first place—went down to defeat. The Reds took the Braves in tow and the Cubs walloped the Dodgers in a ten inning combat.

Alexander is a great kaisomine artist. He applied the brush freely on the Pirates.

FIELD OF SPORTS.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, May 19.—Joe Azevedo, the lightweight, scored another knockout last night when he put over the sleep-producing punch on Frankie Smith of Brooklyn, in the third round.

Liverpool, May 19.—Johnny Rosner, the American flyweight, beat Johnny Evans of Wales in a 15-round contest last night.

New York, May 19.—There was a wide diversity of opinion among the sport writers of New York as to whom was the victor in the ten round bout last night between Ted Gibbons, the English fighter, and Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul Phantom. It was fifty-fifty among them. Some claiming that the American boxer was the teacher and the English fighter the pupil, while the others give the fight to the Englishman, basing their claim on the fact that he was the aggressor, and in fact more than offsetting the cleverness displayed by Gibbons.

Toronto, Ont., May 19.—Outfielder Brackett of the Leafs has been sold to the Birmingham Club of the New York State League. The release of the player has been bought outright by the Birmingham owners. Brackett has gone to Wilkes-Barre to join his new team.

SUGGETS OF NEWS.

Unusual Events Briefly Told in Telegraph Despatches.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New Brunswick.—Walking backward from San Francisco to New York on a $20,000 wager, Patrick Harmon has reached this city 19 days ahead of his schedule. He left the coast on August 5, 1915.

New York.—Yesterday was the coldest May 18 in thirty-four years. The low mark was 44 degrees.

Somerville, N. J.—Frightened by his own reflection in a mirror, a burglar who entered Philip Tunison's home, shattered the glass with two revolver shots and fled, leaving his collected loot behind.

Jersey City.—After quoting Nathan Hale's famous "Regret" Max Sommer said "I regret I have but one salary to give all the girls I'm capable of loving," according to his wife, who is suing for a divorce.

Butler, N. J.—Because munition plants have offered workmen such high wages farmers in this vicinity with the approach of the planting season find themselves without help.
